Highway Work to Keep 2,000 Men Busy in Winter

OUTLINES HIS PLATFORM IN RUN FOR GOVERNOR

NEW PROJECTS, CONTRACT JOBS AND MAINTENANCE

BRIDGE WORK AND GRADING IN HILLY COUNTRY GOES ON ALL WINTER

COMMISSIONER BABCOCK SEEKS TO CHECK UNEMPLOYMENT THROUGH STATE

St. Paul, Minn., Sept. 30.—(U.P.)—The Minnesota highway department today estimated new projects would assure 2,000 men employment this winter. Approximately 1,200 men will be employed on maintenance work, it was said, at least 500 more on contract jobs and 300 in getting equipment and material ready for coming spring construction.

C. M. Babcock, commissioner of highways, said bridge work and grading in hilly country, where power shovels can be used in deep cuts, are two kinds of work which can go on all winter.

Contracts for this kind of work will be let this fall as funds permit in an effort to aid unemployment throughout the state, Babcock said.

Work on many larger bridges will continue throughout the winter. While some added expense is involved in protecting concrete work against freezing, Babcock said this cost is offset by saving in moving material over the ice or frozen ground.

SPRING VALLEY IRON ORE DEPOSITS SEEM TO BE ENCOURAGING

Minneapolis, Sept. 30.—(U.P.)—Samples taken from the Spring Valley iron ore deposits run approximately 50 per cent ore, Professor Z. H. Emmons, University of Minnesota geologist, reported today.

The report was made after a survey of the ore field recently rediscovered near Spring Valley in southern Minnesota.

He pointed out that it was impossible at present to determine the extent and value of the deposits.

The ore was first discovered more than 40 years ago by N. H. Winchell, state geologist, he said. For some time the field was worked just across the line in Iowa but mining was given up due to the high percentage of phosphorus.

ADrift IN BOATS AFTER SCHOONER FIRE

Provincetown, Mass., Sept. 30.—(U.P.)—Adrift for two hours in open boats six miles off Cape Cod after a mysterious fire had enveloped their schooner, eight fishermen were picked up at sea today by another schooner and landed at this port.

Great Northern to Speed Up Its Large Tax Suit

St. Paul, Sept. 30.—(U.P.)—Due to mounting interest charges, the Great Northern railway will attempt to speed up litigation in the $1,329,000 tax suit filed by the government, F. G. Dorey, vice president and general counsel of the road, said today.

"If we owe the government money we want to pay it as soon as possible. Interest charges on a large amount of money make it very desirable that the case be argued at an early date," he said.

$1,267,000 Short Time Highway Bonds are Sold

St. Paul, Sept. 30.—(U.P.)—The state executive council today sold $1,267,000 in short time bonds held in the highway sinking fund. St. Paul, Sept. 30.—(U.P.)—Harold Wingert, 16, was unconscious in the Ancker hospital today after telling police two men had forced him to drink rat poison and then robbed him of $32.

The lad told the story last week but police believed it was fiction because he suffered no ill effects. However, he had to go to bed Saturday and later lapsed into unconsciousness.

Wingert told officers the men had told him to go to a pharmacy to get some rat poison and then had made him drink it when he returned.

ENTERS INTO BITTER FIGHT BETWEEN CHICAGO AND UNDERWORLD

DECLARES JUDGE LYLE'S DRIVE AGAINST CITY'S 26 "PUBLIC ENEMIES" AN OUTRAGE

Chicago, Sept. 30.—(U.P.)—Atty. Clarence Darrow, who defended Loeb and Leopold in the "thrill murder" case of six years ago, emerged from retirement to enter today into the bitter fight being waged between Chicago and its underworld.

Declaring that Judge John H. Lyle's drive against the city's 26 "public enemies" was an "outrage," Darrow returned temporarily to the bar to defend two notorious gangsters charged with being vagrants under the strict old law of 1874.

The gangsters, William "Three Fingers" Jack White and George "Red" Barker, surrendered late yesterday after eluding for days the police whom Judge Lyle ordered to bring every "public enemy" before him.

White and Barker appeared in Judge George B. Holmes' court accompanied by Darrow, W. W. Smith and Milton Smith, the most formidable array of legal talent ever assembled in a vagrancy trial. They had their bonds ready and were released under $10,000 bail each after being under arrest only about ten minutes.

Darrow said he had not discussed fees with his clients, but said if any was charged it would be small. He was ordered to produce the men before Judge Lyle today and it was expected he would demand jury trials for them and probably ask changes of venue.

Another of the "enemies," Terry Druggan, ran into difficulties yesterday when his case was called before Judge Lyle. The case was continued after questioning disclosed that Miss Georgia Bertha Schamze, who offered to furnish bonds for him, did not know the value of the property she had scheduled.

"All the records, activities and general conduct of my campaign will be an open book to Senator Nye," the blind Minnesota senator said. "I will welcome his coming."

Sen. Schall today filed with Mike Holm, secretary of state, a statement showing his personal campaign expenditures to date to be $2,032. Of this sum $1,600 was listed as small contributions. The balance was listed as personal expenses. This item included his $100 filing fee, postage, messenger and wire services.

Another Senatorial Oil Investigation May Come Following Charges of Land Grab Plot

MAY INVOLVE TEAPOT DOME SCANDAL FIRMS

FEELING GROWS THAT CHARGES OF RALPH S. KELLEY SHOULD BE INVESTIGATED

SECRETARY WILBUR REFUSES TO ACCEPT LAND OFFICE HEAD'S RESIGNATION

Washington, Sept. 30.—(U.P.)—Another senatorial oil investigation involving some of the companies in the Teapot Dome scandal, appeared today as the probable result of charges of a $40,000,000 land-grab plot in western oil shale lands.

Chairman Gerald P. Nye of the senate public lands committee, which investigated Teapot Dome, and Senator Thomas J. Walsh, democrat, Montana, who conducted that investigation, agreed that the charges made by Ralph S. Kelley should be examined by congress.

At the same time Secretary of Interior Wilbur, whose department administers the Colorado lands in question, announced he welcomes the fullest examination of the cases referred to in Kelley's letter of resignation as head of the general land office in Denver. Wilbur refused to accept the resignation and suspended Kelley until he could be heard.

Senator Nye, describing Kelley's charges as "amazing," said he had a high opinion of the land office official and that "ultimately Kelley will have to be heard by congress." Senator Walsh, in his home state, voiced similar opinions.

New York, Sept. 30.—Data on all of the oil charges which resulted in his suspension as chief of the field division of the general land office are in the files of the secretary of interior, Ralph S. Kelley told the United Press today.

He declined to name specific oil companies which he has declared were favored by the interior department, but said he would do so "at the proper time."

"I understand Secretary Wilbur has written a letter to me," Kelley said. "I have not received it yet, but I shall answer it promptly when I do. Meanwhile Mr. Wilbur has in his office all the data on my charges. I presume he knows what is in his own files."

Kelley reiterated his willingness to appear before a senate investigating committee. He characterized a statement made by Wilbur yesterday as "largely irrelevant."

Asked if there had been any antagonism between himself and Secretary Wilbur, previous to filing of the charges, Kelley said:

"I have never seen Secretary Wilbur."

Kelley said he was surprised that Wilbur should have suspended him after receiving his resignation and said he knew of no parallel for such action.

CALLING ATTENTION OF GOVERNMENT TO RUSSIA'S SHORT SELLING OF WHEAT

St. Paul, Minn., Sept. 30.—(U.P.)—Representative Hamilton J. Fish, New York, chairman of the congressional commission on communist activity, commended the Chicago board of trade for bringing attention of the federal government to Russia's short selling of wheat when he passed through here enroute today to Seattle for further hearings.

Fish said the board of trade deserved commendation because he had notified the government and then had taken action prohibiting any future short sales by any foreign government in the future.

"The commission had the fullest cooperation from the board of trade and it was very helpful," Fish said.

The chairman said there was not sufficient manifestation of communism in the agricultural northwest to attract official attention.

Fish and his committee members will open hearings in Seattle probably Friday and then go on to San Francisco, Los Angeles and Phoenix, Ariz.

ALFRED E. SMITH PLACES HIM IN NOMINATION AT THE CONVENTION

COMES BY ACCLAMATION AND ROOSEVELT GIVEN AN OVATION

Convention Hall, Syracuse, N. Y., Sept. 30.—(U.P.)—Franklin D. Roosevelt today was nominated as the democratic candidate for governor of New York to succeed himself.

The nomination was made after former Governor Alfred E. Smith, breaking two years of political silence, had placed him in nomination with a speech which was alike a pledge of party honesty and a warning to those accused of corruption that they must clear themselves or be read out of the ranks of democracy.

Roosevelt's nomination was by acclamation.

Roosevelt was given a tremendous ovation exceeded only by the one given Smith when he arose to speak.

Then, while the band played "Anchors Aweigh," recalling the days when Roosevelt was assistant secretary of the navy, the convention acclaimed him its candidate by a tremendous shout. There was no roll call.

3 LIVE TOADS, 300 YEARS OLD, FOUND

ENCASED IN HARD BALLS OF EARTH, TAKEN FROM OKLAHOMA INDIAN MOUND

Oklahoma City, Okla., Sept. 30.—(U.P.)—Curator J. B. Thoburn of the Oklahoma Historical society, today revealed the finding of three live toads, each encased in hard round balls of earth, from an Indian mound of northwest Oklahoma dating back perhaps 300 years.

The depth from which the toads were taken indicated they may have been encased from 50 to 400 years ago.

Eyes and lips of the toads were sealed and the earthen balls were airtight but after their release into the sunlight, the toads began blinking and became lively, Thoburn said. Biologists of the University of Oklahoma will examine the specimens. Similar toads likewise encased have been found heretofore in southwest Oklahoma.

FAVORS PERMANENT ENDOWMENT FUND FOR UNIVERSITY

TO RELIEVE STATE OF BURDEN OF BIENNIAL APPROPRIATIONS

CHANCELLOR LOTUS D. COFFMAN IN REPORT TO THE LEGISLATURE

Minneapolis, Minn., Sept. 30.—(U.P.)—A permanent endowment fund to relieve the state of the burden of biennial appropriations was asked for by the University of Minnesota by Chancellor Lotus D. Coffman today. The request was made in his biennial report to the legislature on the condition of the university.

Pointing out that the appropriations each year add a heavier burden to the state, Coffman suggested that a fund be built up which would eventually support the university with little or no direct appropriation.

The legislature could continue to exercise financial control over the university through its power to vote or withhold support from the permanent fund income, Coffman said.

Coffman traced the growth of the university during the ten years since he became president. He stated that while the enrollment had increased rapidly and many new buildings had been built, the ratio of floor space to students was smaller than before the start of the 10-year building plan.

Despite the widely diffused opinion that students do better in smaller colleges, Coffman pointed out that studies made at the university showed that in many ways the large university provided a more effective education.

The university will continue to increase in enrollment despite the growth of the junior college movement, he said. The dropping enrollment in the first two years of study will be increased by advanced students, he believes.

TEAR GAS BOMBS AND BAYONETS TO AWE MOB

QUIET IS PREVAILING AROUND HUNTSVILLE, ALA., JAIL TODAY

NATIONAL GUARDSMEN PROTECT NEGRO ORIGINALLY HELD ON SUSPICION

Huntsville, Ala., Sept. 30.—(U.P.)—Quiet prevailed around Madison county jail today with national guardsmen in command of a situation which last night forced them to use tear gas bombs and bayonets to handle a menacing crowd.

Within the jail lodged G. E. Henderson, a negro originally held on suspicion of murderously assaulting G. E. Ross, Huntsville business man, and Mrs. Ross, during an attempted robbery Sunday night.

Authorities announced yesterday Henderson is not the man sought in the affair, and reiterated the announcement today.

The crowd which menaced the jail last night had completely dispersed today and officials at the jail said the situation was "thoroughly calm."

During the clash between members of the mob and the militia, stones were hurled into the guardsmen's ranks, tear-gas was thrown into the mob, one member of which was felled by a gun-butt.

Fire hoses effectively were played on the mob to beat it back from the vicinity of the jail.

Henderson originally was suspected because a hat left by the murderer of Ross in the Ross house fitted him, and because he carried a gun at the time of his arrest.

He insisted he had nothing to do with the crime.

PERHAM BARBER COMMITS SUICIDE

URGES COMPLETE OVERHAULING OF THE MINNESOTA STATUTORY LAW

CHAMPIONS REVISION OF THE PRESENT SYSTEM OF TAXATION

Anoka, Minn., Sept. 30.—(U.P.)—Attacking party pronouncements of the farmer-labor party and outlining the comprehensive platform on which he will run as republican candidate for governor, Ray P. Chase, state auditor, delivered his keynote speech today.

Chase charged that "political pirates" had scrapped the "life-giving principles of the farmer-labor party and made a job-hunting band-wagon of its corpse."

His keynote address was scattered with slaps at the present farmer-labor leaders and their platform.

Complete overhauling of the Minnesota statutory law and revision of the present system of taxation to relieve unequal burdens was asked.

Failing to take a definite stand on the state constabulary issue, Chase said, "the forces of crime are expert and well organized. The forces of law must be well organized, trained and armed, to combat modern crime successfully and stamp it out."

"Gangsters are murdering in and around the Twin Cities, unpunished and unprosecuted; in ten years there have been 85 murders in Hennepin county alone," he said.

Chase urged revision of the state boxing laws and a definite decision on the location of the state office building.

The farmer-labor party today is only the husk of the party of 1920, Chase said.

"Then it was aggressively progressive. Now in its platform there is little that is worthy and less that is progressive, little that is honest and nothing that is sincere. It contains not the slightest reference to the distinctive principles for which, however wrong, its leaders, within a decade, vigorously fought. The farmer-labor party is dead. Its soul fled when its principles were abandoned."

The Chase program on outstanding issues urged amendment of drainage laws to permit the restoration of waters, amendment of the reorganization act to define authority and eliminate "irritation," enactment of a drivers license law.

Other points included: Full payment of state aid in advance.

Immediate state building program to provide adequate care for delinquents and defectives.

Early completion of the St. Lawrence seaway and the nine-foot Mississippi channel.

Completion of the trunk highway system. Retention of Charles Babcock as state highway commissioner.

Protection of independent banks against branch and chain banking.

Vigorous enforcement of the blue sky laws.

Creation of a conservation department to administer all natural resources.

Effort should be made to further industrialize the state.

Soldiers preference act should be rigidly enforced and Spanish war veterans should be given proper recognition.

Labor should be protected in a job at a proper wage, under good conditions and guarded against old age, unemployment and poverty.

WAS CARELESS IN SELECTING ALIAS

St. Paul, Sept. 30.—(U.P.)—Carelessness in selecting an alias lead to the arrest of two men in Reno, Nev., wanted in Minnesota for robbery and in North Dakota for murder, R. E. Mason, superintendent of Pinkerton's national detective agency, was informed today.

The men are Robert Johns, alias Stubblefield, alias Stufflefield and Edward Habbine, who are believed to have been connected with the Bemidji holdup on Sept. 13 and the killing of a police officer at Ray, N. D., on Sept. 4.

The use of the same name except for the double f instead of double bb lead to the arrest of the men, Mason was informed.

MAY COMPLETE JURY IN HUCKINS CASE TODAY

Cedar Rapids, Ia., Sept. 30.—(U.P.)—Selection of a jury to hear the case against Elmer S. Huckins, promoter of a financial scheme in which investors were promised high interest rates, was expected to be completed today.

County Attorney Carl Hendrickson and R. S. Milner, defense counsel, yesterday examined 16 members of the jury panel and expected to complete a jury before noon.

Over the objection of the defense King Thompson, assistant county attorney, was participating in the prosecution today. The defense objection that Thompson was a member of the law firm which once defended Huckins in a civil suit was overruled.

Menominee, Wis., Sept. 30.—(U.P.)—Fifty-six forest fires which threatened Menominee county farms during the past nine weeks provided employment for 2,000 men, Joseph M. Hornick, conservator of the forest, said today.

The state paid farmers for fighting the fires and returned the money in payment of taxes, he said.

OCTOBER'S SKIES TO BE BLUE AND WEATHER COOL

ON WEDNESDAY TEMPERATURES WILL CLIMB TO HIGHER MARKS

St. Paul, Sept. 30.—(U.P.)—October's blue skies and clear, cool weather were predicted for the first day of the month by the weather bureau today.

Frosts of last night will be repeated again tonight and then on Wednesday the temperature will climb to higher marks than it touched during the closing days of September.

Killing frosts were reported today from Devils Lake, Moorhead and Winnipeg, Man. Heavy frosts were reported at Duluth, St. Paul, Milwaukee, Green Bay, Wausau, Brainerd and St. Cloud while light frosts were sustained at Madison and Davenport, Iowa.

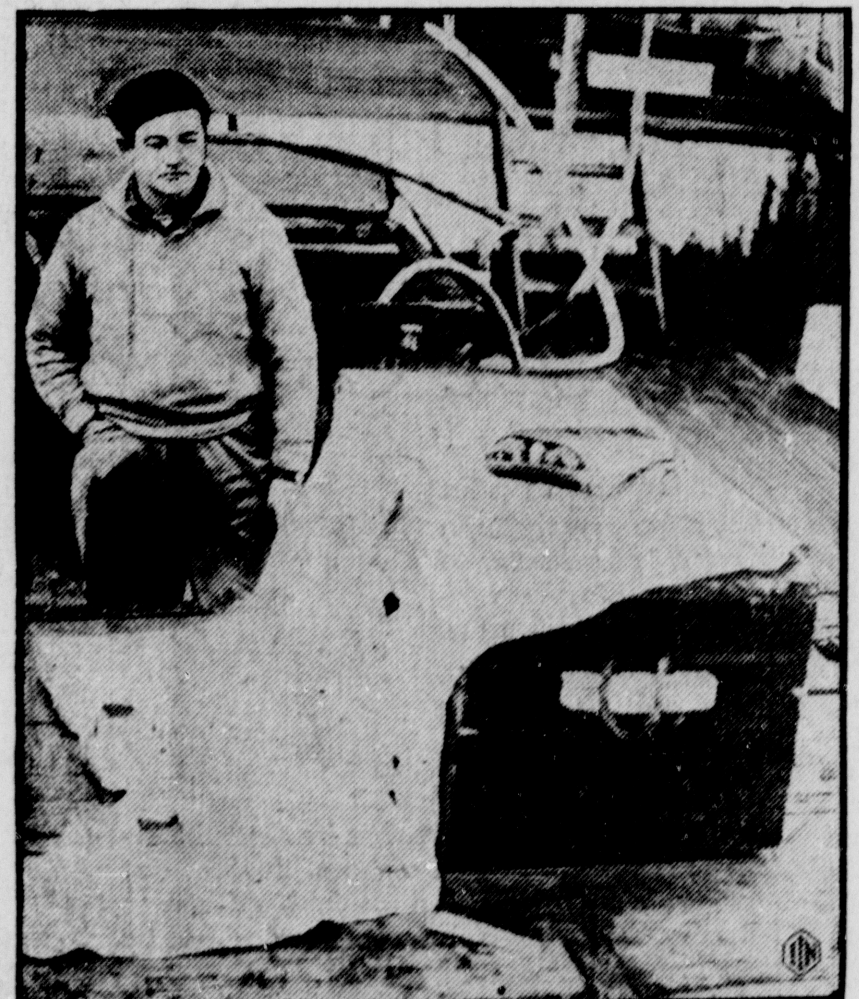

A high pressure area over Manitoba and the eastern Dakotas and Minnesota was moving eastward today and will carry cool weather to the eastern half of the United States.

Miles City, Mont., reported a high temperature reading of the area at 44 degrees while Williston, N. D., was next with 40. Other temperatures were: St. Paul and Huron, S. D., 36; LaCrosse, Wis., and Bismarck, N. D., 34; Duluth, 30; Moorhead, 28; Winnipeg, 26; Devils Lake, N. D., 24, and Minnedosa, 20, the coldest city reporting.

ROOSEVELT FOR DEMOCRATIC GOVERNOR, N. Y.

ALFRED E. SMITH PLACES HIM IN NOMINATION AT THE CONVENTION

COMES BY ACCLAMATION AND ROOSEVELT GIVEN AN OVATION

Convention Hall, Syracuse, N. Y., Sept. 30.—(U.P.)—Franklin D. Roosevelt today was nominated as the democratic candidate for governor of New York to succeed himself.

The nomination was made after former Governor Alfred E. Smith, breaking two years of political silence, had placed him in nomination with a speech which was alike a pledge of party honesty and a warning to those accused of corruption that they must clear themselves or be read out of the ranks of democracy.

Roosevelt's nomination was by acclamation. Roosevelt was given a tremendous ovation exceeded only by the one given Smith when he arose to speak.

Then, while the band played "Anchors Aweigh," recalling the days when Roosevelt was assistant secretary of the navy, the convention acclaimed him its candidate by a tremendous shout. There was no roll call.

3 LIVE TOADS, 300 YEARS OLD, FOUND

ENCASED IN HARD BALLS OF EARTH, TAKEN FROM OKLAHOMA INDIAN MOUND

Oklahoma City, Okla., Sept. 30.—(U.P.)—Curator J. B. Thoburn of the Oklahoma Historical society, today revealed the finding of three live toads, each encased in hard round balls of earth, from an Indian mound of northwest Oklahoma dating back perhaps 300 years.

The depth from which the toads were taken indicated they may have been encased from 50 to 400 years ago.

Eyes and lips of the toads were sealed and the earthen balls were airtight but after their release into the sunlight, the toads began blinking and became lively, Thoburn said. Biologists of the University of Oklahoma will examine the specimens. Similar toads likewise encased have been found heretofore in southwest Oklahoma.

FLYING BUNG OF BEER KEG CARRIES DEATH IN TRAIL

FAVORS PERMANENT ENDOWMENT FUND FOR UNIVERSITY

TO RELIEVE STATE OF BURDEN OF BIENNIAL APPROPRIATIONS

CHANCELLOR LOTUS D. COFFMAN IN REPORT TO THE LEGISLATURE

Minneapolis, Minn., Sept. 30.—(U.P.)—A permanent endowment fund to relieve the state of the burden of biennial appropriations was asked for the University of Minnesota by Chancellor Lotus D. Coffman today. The request was made in his biennial report to the legislature on the condition of the university.

Pointing out that the appropriations each year add a heavier burden to the state, Coffman suggested that a fund be built up which would eventually support the university with little or no direct appropriation.

The legislature could continue to exercise financial control over the university through its power to vote or withhold support from the permanent fund income, Coffman said.

Coffman traced the growth of the university during the ten years since he became president. He stated that while the enrollment had increased rapidly and many new buildings had been built, the ratio of floor space to students was smaller than before the start of the 10-year building plan.

Despite the widely diffused opinion that students do better in smaller colleges, Coffman pointed out that studies made at the university showed that in many ways the large university provided a more effective education.

The university will continue to increase enrollment despite the growth of the junior college movement, he said. The dropping enrollment in the first two years of study will be increased by advanced students, he believes.

TEAR GAS BOMBS AND BAYONETS TO AWE MOB

QUIET IS PREVAILING AROUND HUNTSVILLE, ALA., JAIL TODAY

NATIONAL GUARDSMEN PROTECT NEGRO ORIGINALLY HELD ON SUSPICION

Huntsville, Ala., Sept. 30.—(U.P.)—Quiet prevailed around Madison county jail today with national guardsmen in command of a situation which last night forced them to use tear gas bombs and bayonets to handle a menacing crowd.

Within the jail lodged G. E. Henderson, a negro originally held on suspicion of murdering assaulting G. E. Ross, Huntsville business man, and Mrs. Ross, during an attempted robbery Sunday night.

Authorities announced yesterday Henderson is not the man sought in the affair, and reiterated the announcement today.

The crowd which menaced the jail last night had completely dispersed today and officials at the jail said the situation was "thoroughly calm."

During the clash between members of the mob and the militia, stones were hurled into the guardsmen's ranks, tear-gas was thrown into the mob, one member of which was felled by a gun-butt.

Fire hose effectively was played on the mob to beat it back from the vicinity of the jail.

Henderson originally was suspected because a hat left by the murderer of Ross in the Ross house fitted him, and because he carried a gun at the time of his arrest.

He insisted he had nothing to do with the crime.

PERHAM BARBER COMMITS SUICIDE

Perham, Minn., Sept. 30.—(U.P.)—Louis Schwaerzler, 38, barber, shot himself through the heart with a pistol today after going to a shed behind the hotel where he was employed. The barber was said to have been drinking and gambling recently. He is survived by a wife.

OUTLINES HIS PLATFORM IN RUN FOR GOVERNOR

URGES COMPLETE OVERHAULING OF THE MINNESOTA STATUTORY LAW

CHAMPIONS REVISION OF THE PRESENT SYSTEM OF TAXATION

Anoka, Minn., Sept. 30.—(U.P.)—Attacking party pronouncements of the farmer-labor party and outlining the comprehensive platform on which he will run as republican candidate for governor, Ray P. Chase, state auditor, delivered his keynote speech today.

Chase charged that "political pirates" had scrapped the "life-giving principles of the farmer-labor party and made a job-hunting band-wagon of its corpse."

His keynote address was scattered with slaps at the present farmer-labor leaders and their platform.

Complete overhauling of the Minnesota statutory law and revision of the present system of taxation to relieve unequal burdens was asked.

Failing to take a definite stand on the state constabulary issue, Chase said, "the forces of crime are expert and well organized. The forces of law must be well organized, trained and armed, to combat modern crime successfully and stamp it out."

"Gangsters are murdering in and around the Twin Cities, unpunished and unprosecuted in ten years there have been 85 murders in Hennepin county alone," he said.

Chase urged revision of the state boxing laws and a definite decision on the location of the state office building.

The farmer-labor party today is only the husk of the party of 1920, Chase said.

"Then it was aggressively progressive. Now in its platform there is little that is worthy and less that is progressive, little that is honest and nothing that is sincere. It contains not the slightest reference to the distinctive principles for which, however wrong, its leaders, within a decade, vigorously fought. The farmer-labor party is dead. Its soul fled when its principles were abandoned."

The Chase program on outstanding issues urged amendment of drainage laws to permit the restoration of waters, amendment of the reorganization act to define authority and eliminate "irritation," enactment of a drivers license law.

Other points included:

Full payment of state aid in advance. Immediate state building program to provide adequate care for delinquents and defectives.

Early completion of the St. Lawrence seaway and the nine-foot Mississippi channel.

Completion of the trunk highway system. Retention of Charles Babcock as state highway commissioner.

Protection of independent banks against branch and chain banking. Vigorous enforcement of the blue sky laws.

Creation of a conservation department to administer all natural resources.

Effort should be made to further industrialize the state.

Soldiers preference act should be rigidly enforced and Spanish war veterans should be given proper recognition.

Labor should be protected in a job at a proper wage, under good conditions and guarded against old age, unemployment and poverty.

WAS CARELESS IN SELECTING ALIAS

St. Paul, Sept. 30.—(U.P.)—Carelessness in selecting an alias led to the arrest of two men in Reno, Nev., wanted in Minnesota for robbery and in North Dakota for murder, R. E. Mason, superintendent of Pinkerton's national detective agency, was informed today.

The men are Robert Johns, alias Stubblefield, alias Stufflefield and Edward Habbine, who are believed to have been connected with the Bemidji holdup on Sept. 13 and the killing of a police officer at Ray, N. D., on Sept. 4.

The use of the same name except for the double b instead of double bb led to the arrest of the men, Mason was informed.

MAY COMPLETE JURY IN HUCKINS CASE TODAY

Cedar Rapids, Ia., Sept. 30.—(U.P.)—Selection of a jury to hear the case against Elmer S. Huckins, promoter of a financial scheme in which investors were promised high interest rates, was expected to be completed today.

County Attorney Carl Hendrickson and R. S. Milner, defense counsel, yesterday examined 16 members of the jury panel and expected to complete a jury before noon.

Over the objection of the defense King Thompson, assistant county attorney, was participating in the prosecution today. The defense objection that Thompson was a member of the law firm which once defended Huckins in a civil suit was overruled.

JOHNSON PROMOTED TO CLOQUET MILL HEAD

Named Superintendent There of Northwest Paper Co.; Leaves Tomorrow

HONORED BY FRIENDS

To Visit City Weekly as Supervisor of Brainerd Mill

Thomas G. Johnson, 423 Holly street, superintendent of the Brainerd mill of The Northwest Paper Co. for the past 27 years will leave tomorrow for Cloquet where he has been transferred and promoted to the position of superintendent of the company mills there.

The Brainerd mill will come within the jurisdiction of Mr. Johnson's office and he will continue to have supervision here.

Promotions however are expected in the local mill, these to be announced soon, Mr. Johnson said.

Mr. Johnson expects to move his family to Cloquet in the near future. He announced today he expected to make weekly visits to the Brainerd mill in the line of his future duty.

At a banquet given in his honor last evening at the Ransford hotel Mr. Johnson received the hearty congratulations and best wishes of 80 friends, Brainerd citizens, fellow company officials from the Brainerd and Cloquet mills. H. P. Dunn acted as toastmaster.

PAID ADVERTISEMENT

for which regular advertising rates are to be paid, inserted in behalf of ALFRED L. THWING, of Grand Rapids, Minnesota, candidate for Judge of District Court of the Fifteenth Judicial District, by Itasca County Thwing for Judge Voluntary Committee: C. C. Peterson, of Grand Rapids, Minnesota, secretary.

A Brainerd editor argues for keeping the judgeship in Crow Wing county because it is an "enterprise" bringing business to his community.

An Aitkin partisan calls attention to the fact that Grand Rapids is 26 miles farther than is Brainerd from the village of Aitkin, but offers no figures as to what that might mean to taxpayers of his county. We suggest a possible maximum of $30 per year, even if there be disregarded the willingness of the Grand Rapids candidate to go to Aitkin or other points on special occasions when needed, as the other judges have been accustomed to do. If mileage is to be the measuring stick for the candidates, too, the great majority of voters of the entire district living nearer Grand Rapids than Brainerd might well take note of it.

Brainerd has had a resident judge for 43 years. Itasca county, now having the largest population and by far the largest valuation in the district, with more days of actual court work than any other, has never had one. All these years the residence of our nearest judge has been 73 miles or more from Grand Rapids. In so far as the claims of a locality count, isn't it reasonably fair for us to have our turn now?

SUPPLEMENTAL SCHOOL AID, for which Senator Thwing has led the fight, has been of a net value to Crow Wing county of $29,000 per year.

It is only one of the many instances when our candidate, as citizen, lawyer or legislator, has been the friend and loyal champion of communities of this judicial district, because they deserved it. He claims no obligation owing to him now for doing what he believes was right.

Isn't it possible that just recognition of good service in the past, the assurance Mr. Thwing's record gives of equally good service as a judge, are matters counting for more than whether the position shall be a business-getter for either Brainerd or Grand Rapids?

The Province of a Small Town

GOVERNOR THEODORE CHRISTIANSON, writing the leading article in the October issue of the Sample Case, refers to the future of the small town and its business. "Cities have become so congested," says the governor, "that a new population trend toward the country is discernible."

"High rents, excessive taxes and impossible living conditions are forcing city people to take up their residence in the suburbs and moving the retail business with them. The same factors are forcing industries to establish plants in smaller towns. Motor transportation and hard-surfaced roads, which for a time threatened the small town with extinction, may ultimately become the means of saving the rural community center."

"The new development known as 'giant power' will make electrical energy as available to the manufacturer in the remote village and in the suburbs as it has been in the past to the industrial producer whose plant stands beside a power dam. Small towns and suburban communities will not, as a general rule, become the seats of the greater industries, but many small towns will become centers of modest industrial development."

"I have little sympathy with the idea that every small town should seek to become a large city. Indeed, it is reasonable to suppose that the location of most of the great population centers has already been determined, and that those activities and enterprises which require a concentration of population for successful functioning will, as they come into being, be placed in the large cities which already have been established."

"A small town does not need to become large in order to justify itself. Indeed, population is not an adequate, nor is it the ultimate, measure of a town's size. Much character can come out of Nazareth. Great influences often have their starting point in those places which the more superficial and supercilious of the milling millions of the great metropolis call 'hick towns.'"

"The small town is at its best as a small town. It loses its character and distinction, and sometimes even makes itself absurd, when it attempts to be what it is not. An American essayist humorously tells of a small town in the far west where he had no difficulty in finding Twelfth Street and Twentieth Avenue, but could not locate First Street and First Avenue. It is difficult to understand why Gopher Prairie should want to ape Gotham, William Allen White, speaking of the glories of Emporia, Kansas, and explaining why it is a better city than its larger neighbors, says, 'It often happens that towns lose their value as civilized abodes somewhat in relation to their increase in population.'"

"Last summer, while motoring in Massachusetts, I visited Concord. It is a small place, but it looms large in the history of our country. It has a wide reputation. It has wielded a mighty influence. There I stood on the spot where the minutemen of the Revolution fired the shot heard 'round the world. There the naturalist, Henry David Thoreau, and the philosopher, Ralph Waldo Emerson, lived. That little town is a great patriotic and literary shrine, to which thousands make pilgrimage every year."

"On the paved highway between Duluth and the Mesaba Range is a little cross-roads trading center, called Cotton. It has a thriving store, an excellent restaurant, a good garage, and one of those fine schools in which St. Louis county of my state of Minnesota takes pardonable pride. Along the highway is a sign-board with this legend: 'The biggest place in the world for its size.'"

"If your town would be great, let it develop a school which shall emphasize good citizenship and instill love of learning. If it would be great, let it support a hospital in which those who are physically distressed may find relief and healing. If it would be great, let it cherish its churches, in which the faith and hope and fortitude of its people shall be sustained."

"If it would be great, let it provide good entertainment and healthful recreation for its young folk. If it would be great, let it keep its library filled with good books. If it would be great, let it establish high ideals of citizenship and stimulate in its citizenry a keen sense of public responsibility."

The Home Paper is Read

THE home paper is read from start to finish, every item, local and big stories, want ads and display advertising, every line of it.

It is a letter from home and nowhere is it more appreciated than when one is a student at some college or school. It is an antidote for "home sickness." You can make no better present for your boy or girl at the school than to send the Daily Dispatch.

You may fail to write at times, you can hardly expect to tell all the happenings in town in your letter. Let the Dispatch supplement your correspondence. The gift will be appreciated by your boy or girl.

BRAINERD SQUAD BATTLES WADENA ELEVEN TO SCORELESS TIE SATURDAY

LOYAL FANS CROWD FIELD DESPITE FREEZING WEATHER TO CHEER TEAMS ON

Saturday Coach Dammon's blue and white warriors opened the grid season by holding the Wadena aggregation to a scoreless tie. The Brainerd eleven although showing fight at times lacked the necessary punch to push over a touchdown. Brainerd had two opportunities to score, the first coming in the third quarter when a successful forward pass made it first down on Wadena's ten yard line. In the next series of plays Schuety carried the ball over the line for a touchdown but an offside on the part of Brainerd prevented a score. On the next play, an attempted forward pass, the ball was grounded over the goal line and the ball went into the possession of Wadena on their twenty yard line.

In the fourth quarter, another forward pass, Gabiou to Wygle, put Brainerd in scoring position once more, but the next four plays failed to net the necessary ten yards and the ball went into the possession of Wadena.

Both teams showed lack of practice and this game was not a fair indication of the strength of either eleven. The greatest threat on both sides was the aerial game, each team making long gains via the pass route.

For Brainerd E. Foster and Garvey showed up the best of the line men, both having had previous experience. In the backfield Gabiou proved a real threat in tossing forward passes and Franks and Schuety excelled in the running game.

Next Saturday the B. H. S. squad will travel to Bemidji when they will engage the Bemidji High gridgers for the first time in years. The experience gained in the Wadena game should be of great assistance in preparing for the Bemidji game and the rival coaches promise a great battle.

Girls' Volley Teams Begin Practice for Interclass Tournament

Girls' Volley practise has been started for an Interclass Tournament to be held in about three weeks. So far only the Juniors and Seniors have had any practice with 28 and six girls respectively. Freshmen girls will practice Tuesday and Sophomores Wednesday. This is the first time in the history of the new school that an interclass volleyball tournament will be held. Each class will have at least five practice periods.

English III Classes Using 'Scholastic' Magazine

Miss Olson's and Miss Oertling's English III classes are using the sample copies of the "Scholastic" sent out by the Scholastic Publishing Co. of Pittsburgh, Penn.

This booklet is used for class work and references. It contains the autobiography of the works of noted poets and authors, what is happening around the world, what is happening at Washington, bibliography, signs, articles, and debates.

If these prove of interest to the students they will be used in the future.

FIRST PEP FEST HELD IN AUDITORIUM FRIDAY

Last Friday the first of many Pep Fests was held prior to the football game which was held Saturday at Wadena.

Because of the absence of the regular cheer leaders, Lyle Mayo led the cheering very successfully. As it was the first cheering done this season, it began weakly but grew stronger till it became a climatic roar in the "Old Locomotive," at which everyone yelled his or her loudest.

Miss Evelyn Loom, a newcomer to the school, helped at the piano with "Hail, Hail, the Gang's All Here." Mr. La Meter for the last time, showed us again, "Mr. La Meter's Special" which was done a few times.

Many old favorite cheers were given and thus it ended wishing lots of luck to the team on the morrow.

BOWMANS, O'BRIENS ENTERTAIN FACULTY

TWO LARGE DINNERS GIVEN FOR TEACHERS LAST WEEK

Last Thursday night, the entire faculty was again invited to a dinner, this time at the O'Brien cottage on Clearwater, at which nearly every faculty member and wives attended.

The main thing of the evening was, of course, the dinner, which consisted of the following and proved to be very satisfying to the ravished appetites of many and appealed to all:

MENU

Baked Ham Mashed Potatoes
Salad (2 tomatoes with cottage cheese)
Pickles Rolls
Coffee Pie a la Mode

After doing away with as much food as possible the group assembled at another spot where they were most interestingly entertained by Ed Tom O'Brien's dexterity at the piano, not to mention Mr. LaMeter's and Mr. Melby's clown acts. That which gave added zest to their very humorous skits was the change in Mr. Melby who is usually considered a very quiet person.

Thus a most enjoyable evening ended—one to be long remembered.

Duck Dinner at Bowman's

Teachers eat and how! According to the reports from the nine faculty members who attended a most delicious duck supper at Bowman's.

Twenty ducks comprised the main item of the menu, prepared in a most appetizing way, and accompanied by luscious home grown tomatoes, creamy mashed potatoes, squash and pickles. Large, juicy watermelons, cup cakes and coffee finished a very delicious and enjoyable dinner.

Autumn leaves of all the various, gorgeous colors and spruce and pine boughs of a rich green lent a very lovely background to a very lovely time.

EXCHANGE

Besides receiving the Montauk Messenger, Lt. Olaf's publication, we have gotten the first editions of the Cornelian, Cornell College paper; The Student American from Mankato. We have never received the latter, before. The Gustavus-Adolphus College also has sent us their first paper this school year. Only 472 have enrolled at the G. A. college.

A High School paper from the Beale H. S. was in the Exchange Mail box. We have never received this paper before, either. We do not know where it is, but we think it is down in the "harm" part of the United States.

Little Falls high school has also adopted the six-hour day plan. They state that it is one of the most practical ideas they have ever had introduced. They also say that this plan will benefit the majority of students although in some cases they fail to recognize it. The student under this new plan, puts in more necessary hours of study than he otherwise would in the course of the school year.

Clinton College started the year with 907 students enrolled. It has a larger enrollment than either Gustavus Adolphus or St. Olaf.

We have another high paper added to our exchange list, "The Holdrege Duffer" of Holdrege, Neb. This is a very well arranged paper and we welcome it.

ROBERT CRUST CHOSEN PRESIDENT OF SR. HI-Y

Robert Crust, president; Parker Campbell, vice president; Donald Zander, secretary; and Howard Zander, treasurer; were the officers elected last Tuesday night at the Y. M. C. A. to lead the members of Senior Hi-Y through their first year as Senior Hi-Y members.

Immediately after the election, the newly elected officers took up their new duties at which time the members agreed on paying for one quarter of the expense for the redecorating of the Y. M. C. A. club rooms.

The club also agreed to adopt some Greek letters or slogan but further action was delayed until various Greek letters and slogans could be obtained.

Mr. Peterson, the Y. M. C. A. secretary, stated that Mr. Lamb, the state Hi-Y secretary, is planning to pay a visit to Brainerd, and at which time it is expected that he will attend one of the Senior Hi-Y II meetings.

JUNIORS TO MEET MONDAY NIGHTS

PART OF DUES MUST BE IN BY NEXT THURSDAY IN ORDER TO ATTEND PICNIC

A great many important things were discussed at the Junior meeting held last Friday. The class decided to meet the second Monday of each month. Dues was the most important question brought before the class. They were voted to be a dollar the first semester. Second semester dues will be discussed later. All or part of the first semester dues have to be in before next Thursday in order to attend the Junior-Senior picnic. There will be dues collectors in each English class next week.

The following Juniors are on the refreshment committee for the joint picnic: Anna Cass, Marjorie Forsberg, Clara Grimstad and Dorothy Kinney. John Folsom, Parker Campbell and Joe Marshall were chosen to be on the transportation committee.

There are many things for the Juniors to look forward too, the most important being the Junior-Senior Picnic. Everyone can help to make this year a success by paying his or her dues.

HIGH SCHOOL GIRLS WIN W. C. T. U. PRIZE

EVELYN GRIMSTAD, '30 GRADUATE, AND JENNIE HOWTON WINNERS IN STATE

Evelyn Grimstad of the Teachers' Training Department, and Jennie Howton of the Freshman class won the state prizes on last year's "prohibition essays" which have been sponsored by the W. C. T. U. organization the last few years. Each of the girls received seven dollars from the state. Both essays were sent in to the National Contest of which the final results will be known in November.

Dex Geist: "Are you interested in aviation?"
Helen Sheets: "Yes."
D. G.: "Do you wanta fly?"
H. S.: "Yes."
D. G.: "Well, wait a minute and I'll catch you one."

There are meters of water—
There are meters of light—
But the best of all meters
Is to me'ter at night.
There are letters of accent—
There are letters of tone

SENIOR DUES SET AT A DOLLAR A SEMESTER; JOINT PICNIC TO BE HELD

Marie Rau Elected President of Netoppew 1930 Camp Fire Group

The following officers were chosen to lead the Netoppew Camp Fire girls through their yearly work:

President—Marie Rau.
Vice President—Lillie Casey.
Secretary—Vera Young.
Treasurer—Ruth Sifert.

A number of important things were decided upon at this meeting. The girls set aside Tuesday night for their meetings. Virginia Wilson and Marjorie McGaffigan were appointed to make out the program for the year. The group also decided on having supper meetings once a month. The following girls have charge of the first supper: Lillie Casey, Marie Erdmann, Marcella Favrou, and Vera Young.

The girls are very glad to hear that a room on the third floor of the city hall has been given as a club room to all the Camp Fire girls of this city.

TRI-HI LAYS RULES FOR NEW PLEDGES

"HONORABLE ACTIVES" TO HOLD NEW GIRLS AT THEIR MERCY

To do or not to do what the actives say, is a question the pledges of the Tri-Hi club are asking themselves. Most of them seemed to enjoy the meeting Thursday night held mostly for their benefit.

The next meeting will show whether cosmetics improve or deteriorate their looks, when they come to the meeting without powder, rouge, etc. The "Honorable Actives" hope that it is warm next Thursday because pledges are requested to wear their winter mittens to and during the meeting.

Any pledge that is seen without her little blue pin is subject to severe punishment from the merciless hands of the "Honorable Actives." A pledge is not to sit on a chair unless all actives have chairs. They are to bring their own newspapers and sit gracefully on the floor. They have to carry books, address members as "Honorable Actives" and in general do anything they say. If it is done unwillingly or not at all, there is sufficient means of correcting this.

Miss Swanstrom, who was an advisor to a Senior High School group of girls in Danbury, Iowa, is invited to the next meeting.

COMING OR GOING WE CATCH 'EM

Miss Hildegarde Holm spent the week end in the twin cities, visiting friends and relatives.

The Tatapochan Campfire group was entertained at a weekend party at the Erickson lake cottage on Gull Lake.

Marjorie Forsberg visited friends and relatives in Duluth over Saturday and Sunday.

Mildred Johnson visited friends in Duluth Sunday, accompanied by her parents.

Miss Tornstrom was entertained at a House Party at Cohen's cottage on Gull Lake over the week end.

Miss Walkup spent the week end at Mills Lake.

Brainerd high school students who attended the game at Wadena Saturday were Parker, Campbell, Drexel Geist, John Folsom, Lyle Anderson, Asle Trommald, Evelyn Loom, Mildred Johnson, Janet Kampmann, Alta Croger, Kenneth Malmstrom, Howard Zander, Margaret Houston and Ellen Larson.

Vagabond Autumn

Orange, red, and yellow
Flank the sides of every road;
Followed by the toiling farmer
Taking in his harvest load—
Loads of pumpkins, squashes, 'taters,
Bushels of dry yellow corn;
Fortune surely was in earnest
When she tipped her plenty horn.

Squirrels a'chatter in the tree tops,
Birds a'chorsing around,
Leaves a'turning sunset colors,
Brown—and falling to the ground.
Autumn gay has crept upon us,
Like a gypsy vagabond
Shared us in her whirl of colors,
Only to be blithely gone.

—Rose Marie Johnson

Kenneth Merrill: Miss Tornstrom, your pneumatic contrivance has ceased to function.

Miss T.: What was that?
K. M.: I say, your tubular air container has lost its rotundity—in other words you have a flat tire.

Miss Graham: "Now who can tell us something about the great Homer?"

Marion N.: "Well, his name is Hobbie Ruth, and his salary is $80,000 a year."

FIRST SOCIAL EVENT TO BE THE JOINT PICNIC WITH THE JUNIORS

Dues were set at $1.00 for the first semester, at a Senior meeting held Monday, at 3:20 in the Senior assembly.

Gerald Cass, the newly elected president, took charge of the meeting, with the assistance of Miss Tornstrom and Miss Olson, senior advisors.

Minutes of the previous meeting were read by Arline Hagberg, secretary.

Lyle Mayo, treasurer, reported that the senior rings would be here by the middle of October. The largest order ever sent in for the first time was 85 rings and pins.

There was a discussion about the cost of being included in the annual whether this should be taken care of by the dues, or be paid separately. They decided to pay fifty cents to be allowed to have their picture and their name in the annual.

The class decided to have a picnic next week and invited the Juniors to make it a joint affair. The arrangements as to time and place were left to a committee from each class.

The meeting adjourned at four o'clock.

WEEZY'S SNEEZES

Lawrence W.: "Let's play hooky and take in a show."

Hallett Clarkson: "Can't do it. I need the sleep."

Miss Graham: "What is the date of the downfall of Turkey?"
Brilliant Freshmen: "Thanksgiving."

Dex Geist: "It certainly is too bad Lincoln wasn't born in Cincinnati."

Park C.: "How's that?"
D. G.: "Because that's what I answered in a test today."

Miss Mathis: "What are the four literary periods in Shakespeare's life?"
Dwight Curo: "Baby, boyhood, youth, and man."

Hildegarde H.: "Why is your neck like a certain kind of typewriter?"

Donald H.: "I'll bite."

H. H.: "Because it's Underwood."

Mr. La Meter: "What can you tell me about nitrates?"

Ted Marchell: "Well-er- they're a lot cheaper than day rates."

Miss Walkup: "Ray, give an example of exaggeration."

Ray Wareing: "Sure, an elephant hanging, over a cliff, its tail tied to a daisy."

Geometry proof:
Given: A sheet of ruled paper.
To prove: The paper is a lazy dog.
Proof: A sheet of ruled paper is an ink lined plane.

An inclined plane is a slope up.

A slow pup is a lazy dog.

Proof enough!

The Province of a Small Town

GOVERNOR THEODORE CHRISTIANSON, writing the leading article in the October issue of the Sample Case, refers to the future of the small town and its business. "Cities have become so congested," says the governor, "that a new population trend toward the country is discernible."

"High rents, excessive taxes and impossible living conditions are forcing city people to take up their residence in the suburbs and moving the retail business with them. The same factors are forcing industries to establish plants in smaller towns. Motor transportation and hard-surfaced roads, which for a time threatened the small town with extinction, may ultimately become the means of saving the rural community center."

"The new development known as 'giant power' will make electrical energy as available to the manufacturer in the remote village and in the suburbs as it has been in the past to the industrial producer whose plant stands beside a power dam. Small towns and suburban communities will not, as a general rule, become the seats of the greater industries, but many small towns will become centers of modest industrial development."

"I have little sympathy with the idea that every small town should seek to become a large city. Indeed, it is reasonable to suppose that the location of most of the great population centers has already been determined, and that those activities and enterprises which require a concentration of population for successful functioning will, as they come into being, be placed in the large cities which already have been established."

"A small town does not need to become large in order to justify itself. Indeed, population is not an adequate, nor is it the ultimate, measure of a town's size. Much character can come out of Nazareth. Great influences often have their starting point in those places which the more superficial and supercilious of the milling millions of the great metropolis call 'hick towns.'"

"The small town is at its best as a small town. It loses its character and distinction, and sometimes even makes itself absurd, when it attempts to be what it is not. An American essayist humorously tells of a small town in the far west where he had no difficulty in finding Twelfth Street and Twentieth Avenue, but could not locate First Street and First Avenue. It is difficult to understand why Gopher Prairie should want to ape Gotham. William Allen White, speaking of the glories of Emporia, Kansas, and explaining why it is a better city than its larger neighbors, says, 'It often happens that towns lose their value as civilized abodes somewhat in relation to their increase in population.'"

"Last summer, while motoring in Massachusetts, I visited Concord. It is a small place, but it looms large in the history of our country. It has a wide reputation. It has wielded a mighty influence. There I stood on the spot where the minutemen of the Revolution fired the shot heard 'round the world. There the naturalist, Henry David Thoreau, and the philosopher, Ralph Waldo Emerson, lived. That little town is a great patriotic and literary shrine, to which thousands make pilgrimage every year."

"On the paved highway between Duluth and the Mesaba Range is a little cross-roads trading center, called Cotton. It has a thriving store, an excellent restaurant, a good garage, and one of those fine schools in which St. Louis county of my state of Minnesota takes pardonable pride. Along the highway is a sign-board with this legend: 'The biggest place in the world for its size.'"

"If your town would be great, let it develop a school which shall emphasize good citizenship and instill love of learning. If it would be great, let it support a hospital in which those who are physically distressed may find relief and healing. If it would be great, let it cherish its churches, in which the faith and hope and fortitude of its people shall be sustained."

"If it would be great, let it provide good entertainment and healthful recreation for its young folk. If it would be great, let it keep its library filled with good books. If it would be great, let it establish high ideals of citizenship and stimulate in its citizenry a keen sense of public responsibility."

"If it will do all these things, through the initiation of its people, employing, supporting and sustaining each other in their own enterprises, trades and professions, even if it never exceeds in population one thousand souls, it will become a city great in all things that count. It will be to the people who love it and call it home 'the biggest place in the world for its size.'"

BRAINERD SQUAD BATTLES WADENA
ELEVEN TO SCORELESS TIE SATURDAYLOYAL FANS CROWD FIELD DESPITE FREEZING WEATHER
TO CHEER TEAMS ON

Saturday Coach Damon's blue and white warriors opened the grid season by holding the Wadena aggregation to a scoreless tie. The Brainerd eleven although showing fight at times lacked the necessary punch to push over a touchdown. Brainerd had two opportunities to score, the first coming in the third quarter when a successful forward pass made it first down on Wadena's ten yard line. In the next series of plays Schuety carried the ball over the line for a touchdown but an offside on the part of Brainerd prevented a score. On the next play, an attempted forward pass, the ball was grounded over the goal line and the ball went to Wadena on their twenty yard line.

In the fourth quarter, another forward pass, Gabiou to Wygle, put Brainerd in scoring position once more, but the next four plays failed to net the necessary ten yards and the ball went into the possession of Wadena.

Both teams showed lack of practice and this game was not a fair indication of the strength of either eleven. The greatest threat on both sides was the aerial game, each team making long gains via the passer route.

For Brainerd E. Foster and Garvey showed up the best of the line men, both having had previous experience. In the backfield Gabiou proved a real threat in tossing forward passes and Franks and Schuety excelled in the running game.

Next Saturday the B. H. S. squad will travel to Bemidji when they will engage the Bemidji High gridders for the first time in years. The experience gained in the Wadena game should be of great assistance in preparing for the Bemidji game and the rival coaches promise a great battle.

SOME DUCK STORY

Gee! Teachers 'r lucky. Nine 'uv 'rs went out to Bowman's last Wednesday and had 3 ducks! Yep! They didn't even haf to shoot them or cook 'em or nothin'. My that's over 3 apiece, too.

Miss Tornstrom and Miss Schow even had a contest to see who cud eat the mostest gizzards. (Jat gess who won!) Then after the diner (which wasn't all ducks and things that pleeze everybody) the teachers went wakin' around the beech and takin in the beautiful sites.

The peepul livin aroun their fairly gogled to think that teachers are reely humans but we even no that donte we?

Bet peepul who aint herd sum of our teachers wize crails think they cant even laff or nothin but I think they can, and how!

They all got out and back kwite safely. Tut even stood up and akshully carried sum teachers in her convulsive embrace cleer out and back! Mr. Taylor brot his car out with Mr. La Meter as an extra passenger later to help tak some back and to enjoy the picnic. Miss Walkup's little Blue car went whizzing aroun every corner in site and got bak safely enuff, considerin all the duk those teachers ate. (I'm jealous, I am.) Miss Taylor, who is running a endurance test to see how long she can go without coming her hair, neerly can't to disaster. Sum of the teachers didnt agree that she shud win such a contest and they tried to com it for her. Wall it issent kwite fair wen you consider us havin to com 'rs every morning before skule.

As I sed before, We be unto me that I'm not a teacher. Ahem! (sigh).

Two Hundred Frosh Report

THE spectacle of three teams entered in a football game last Saturday has stirred the frosh at the University of Minnesota and last night 200 freshmen galloped about the field, catching passes and punts and going through setting up exercises. Husky lads are in evidence.

Merit wins at the university, everyone has a chance. The squad will not be cut this year for lack of equipment as in the past. George Tuttle is head coach and is assisted by Sig Harris, Otis McCreery and Blaine McKusick.

Handling Crowds of 75,000

THE Long Beach Sun of Long Beach gives an account of the Amateur Athletic Union aquatic which attracted a crowd of 75,000 men, women and children to the Recreation Park Lagoon area and the four-day affair passed off without an arrest or accident of any kind.

Police commented on the fact that in the old days before the 18th amendment operated, it would have taken a half hundred policemen to do the work of the few of the present day.

'LEFTY' GROVES AGAINST BURLEIGH GRIMES IN OPENER

WORLD SERIES IS ON TOMORROW AT PHILADELPHIA

30 NEW MARKS ARE SET IN TWO MAJOR LEAGUES

BELIEVE CONNIE MACK HAS DECIDED TO CROSS OPINIONS OF EXPERTS

WILL SEND HIS BEST SHOT AFTER ALL IMPORTANT FIRST GAME

By FRANK GETTY (United Press Sports Editor)

Philadelphia, Sept. 30. — It will be "Lefty" Grove against Burleigh Grimes in the opening game of the world series between the Philadelphia Athletics and the St. Louis Cardinals here tomorrow.

From a source close to the astute Cornelius McGillicuddy, sage of the national pastime and manager of its defending world's champions, the United Press learned today that Connie Mack has decided to cross the experts who have been doing his picking for him and send his best shot after the all important first game.

Mack is being himself and saying nothing for publication, but when United Press in Chief George Moriarty calls the boys to order before some 35,000 excited fans tomorrow afternoon, it will be tall, lean "Lefty" who will saunter to the pitcher's box to start zipping his fast ball past the challengers from Missouri.

It is part of Connie Mack's policy to conceal his battle plans from the enemy until the last minute, but the Cardinals were convinced today that they would face Grove in the opener and as they went out for their first practice session behind barred gates at Shibe Park they professed to believe that they are going to knock this same Mr. Grove into the neighboring Schuylkill.

The National League champions are a refreshing lot, in that they are brimming with confidence, with blood in their eyes and pep in their strides. National League pennant winners of recent years have gone into the big strides with rather a hang-dog air. These Cardinals already are spending the long end of the heavy world series sugar.

"Sergeant" Gabby Street, who was regarded as somewhat of a "busher" among major league managers earlier this season, apparently has his boys on their toes, which is half the battle in any series. Burleigh Grimes, his choice for the pitching assignment, is brimming with confidence and willing to have the entire baseball world know that he expects to set the heavy hitters in the A's line-up down in most undignified disorder.

"I only hope it is Grove in there against me," said Grimes.

"He'll have to pitch a shutout to get an even break," Burleigh's spitball is figured by National League partisans as just the proper medicine for the American League champions. They point to the success which Faber of the White Sox, another spitball artist, had against the Mackmen this season.

Billiards will be played in the jungles of Sumatra in the Dutch East Indies. Rev. Carl Hamel, a foreign missionary, now is on his way to Sumatra via Holland and he is taking with him a portable junior billiard table.

He will be stationed 280 miles inland and he intends to have a special canopy made to protect the table and ivory.

It was while visiting his family in Chicago recently that he attended a billiard exhibition and saw the possibilities of this form of recreation for the natives.

The city of Hartford, Conn., once a stronghold of Eastern League baseball, ascribes the sharp decline in interest this year to the simultaneous rapid growth of golf.

With little or no business depression to offer as an excuse, the experts note intensive activity on the city's 21 private club and two municipal golf courses, in contrast with empty stands at the ball park.

The proposed Olympic village, to be built near the scene of the 1932 games in Los Angeles, will be similar to an army camp. Each team will be housed in a separate building with a large dining hall and an assembly building available to all. The village will be shut in by an ornamental iron fence and will be situated on a high spot swept by the cool breezes from the Pacific.

Rowing for 150-pound crews, which heretofore has been in the experimental stage at the naval academy, will be placed upon a permanent basis next year.

Light varsity and plebe crews will be regularly organized and schedules arranged for them.

They will be coached next year by Lieut. Dudley Brown and Sherman Clark, former navy crew men. The assignment of these officers as coaches will enable Lieut. Buck Walsh to give all of his time to the regular plebe crew.

ROBERT 'LEFTY' GROVE

When the umpire bellows out the batteries in tomorrow's opener of the world series between the Philadelphia Athletics and the St. Louis Cardinals it's a good guess he will announce Robert ("Lefty") Grove, pitcher, and Mickey Cochrane, catcher, for the Athletics.

COMPARING THE ATHLETICS AND ST. LOUIS CARDS

PHILADELPHIA TEAM HOLDS AN EDGE IN PITCHING AND FIELDING

CARDINALS ARE SUPERIOR IN BATTING, ACCORDING TO SEASON AVERAGES

By GEORGE KIRKSEY (United Press Staff Correspondent)

Philadelphia, Sept. 30. — The only basis of comparison afforded between the world series rivals reveals that the Philadelphia Athletics hold an edge in pitching and fielding and the St. Louis Cardinals are superior in batting, according to the season's averages released today by the United Press.

The Athletics have five of the outstanding players, with Mickey Cochrane, Al Simmons and Jimmy Foxx ranking above their rivals and Lefty Grove and George Earnshaw the two foremost pitchers.

As a whole, the Cardinals seem to have a better balanced team, with every player batting .300 or more, and the pitching strength evenly divided among five men—Grimes, Hallahan, Johnson, Haines and Rhem.

Together Grove and Earnshaw have won 50 games, six more than Grimes, Hallahan and Johnson, who have hung up 44 between them.

In a short series, Grove, who has worked in 22 complete games, and Earnshaw, who has pitched 29 complete games, figure to carry the burden of the Philadelphia pitching.

Among the regulars Al Simmons carries the top batting of the two teams, with a mark of .381. Watkins, Cards' right fielder, with .379 and Gus Manasco, who will do the catching for St. Louis in lieu of the injured Jimmy Wilson, with .370, are next to Simmons.

Final comparative averages of the rival players follow:

Judge Fuchs, enthused over the gate receipts at Boston, has told Bill McKelvie, manager, to go out and buy anything he wants in the way of players.

There is still a chance that a special match for the fancy shot billiard championship of the world will be played before January 1. This was learned when it was announced that Senor Isidoro Ribas, Spanish billiard champion, had decided to remain in the United States until January 17, when his immigration permit expires.

Ribas is recognized as the fancy shot champion of Europe, while for years Charles C. Peterson of St. Louis has been recognized as the unofficial world's fancy shot titleholder.

Railroad companies sell their old ties whenever possible to people living near the railroad. The moving and handling is too expensive to make it worth while to sell them otherwise. Few of them are good for anything except firewood.

'LEFTY' GROVES AGAINST BURLEIGH GRIMES IN OPENER

WORLD SERIES IS ON TOMORROW AT PHILADELPHIA

BELIEVE CONNIE MACK HAS DECIDED TO CROSS OPINIONS OF EXPERTS

WILL SEND HIS BEST SHOT AFTER ALL IMPORTANT FIRST GAME

By FRANK GETTY (United Press Sports Editor)

Philadelphia, Sept. 30. — It will be "Lefty" Grove against Burleigh Grimes in the opening game of the world series between the Philadelphia Athletics and the St. Louis Cardinals here tomorrow.

From a source close to the astute Cornelius McGillicuddy, sage of the national pastime and manager of its defending world's champions, the United Press learned today that Connie Mack has decided to cross the experts who have been doing his picking for him and send his best shot after the all important first game.

Mack is being himself and saying nothing for publication, but when Umpire-in-Chief George Moriarty calls the boys to order before some 35,000 excited fans tomorrow afternoon it will be tall, lean "Lefty" who will saunter to the pitcher's box to start zipping his fast ball past the challengers from Missouri.

It is part of Connie Mack's policy to conceal his battle plans from the enemy until the last minute, but the Cardinals were convinced today that they would face Grove in the opener and as they went out for their first practice session behind barred gates at Shibe Park they professed to believe that they are going to knock this same Mr. Grove into the neighboring Schuylkill.

The National League champions are a refreshing lot, in that they are brimming with confidence, with blood in their eyes and pep in their strides. National League pennant winners of recent years have gone into the big strides with rather a hang-dog air. These Cardinals already are spending the long end of the heavy world series sugar.

"Sergeant" Gabby Street, who was regarded as somewhat of a "busher" among major league managers earlier this season, apparently has his boys on their toes, which is half the battle in any series. Burleigh Grimes, his choice for the pitching assignment, is brimming with confidence and willing to have the entire baseball world know that he expects to set the heavy hitters in the A's line-up down in most undignified disorder.

"I only hope it is Grove in there against me," said Grimes.

"He'll have to pitch a shutout to get an even break," Burleigh's spitball is figured by National League partisans as just the proper medicine for the American League champions. They point to the success which Faber of the White Sox, another spitball artist, had against the Mackmen this season.

Billiards will be played in the jungles of Sumatra in the Dutch East Indies. Rev. Carl Hamel, a foreign missionary, now is on his way to Sumatra via Holland and he is taking with him a portable junior billiard table.

He will be stationed 250 miles inland and he intends to have a special canopy made to protect the table and ivory.

It was while visiting his family in Chicago recently that he attended a billiard exhibition and saw the possibilities of this form of recreation for the natives.

The city of Hartford, Conn., once a stronghold of Eastern League baseball, ascribes the sharp decline in interest this year to the simultaneous rapid growth of golf.

With little or no business depression to offer as an excuse, the experts note intensive activity on the city's 21 private club and two municipal golf courses, in contrast with empty stands at the ball park.

The proposed Olympic village, to be built near the scene of the 1932 games in Los Angeles, will be similar to an army camp. Each team will be housed in a separate building with a large dining hall and an assembly building available to all. The village will be shut in by an ornamental iron fence and will be situated on a high spot swept by the cool breezes from the Pacific.

Rowing for 150-pound crews, which heretofore has been in the experimental stage at the naval academy, will be placed upon a permanent basis next year.

Light varsity and plebe crews will be regularly organized and schedules arranged for them.

They will be coached next year by Lieut. Dudley Brown and Sherman Clark, former navy crew men. The assignment of these officers as coaches will enable Lieut. Buck Walsh to give all of his time to the regular plebe crew.

30 NEW MARKS ARE SET IN TWO MAJOR LEAGUES

It's Grove and Cochrane for the Athletics

ROBERT "LEFTY" GROVE.

MICKEY COCHRANE, C.

When the umpire bellows out the batteries in tomorrow's opener of the world series between the Philadelphia Athletics and the St. Louis Cardinals it's a good guess he will announce Robert ("Lefty") Grove, pitcher, and Mickey Cochrane, catcher, for the Athletics.

COMPARING THE ATHLETICS AND ST. LOUIS CARDS

PHILADELPHIA TEAM HOLDS AN EDGE IN PITCHING AND FIELDING

CARDINALS ARE SUPERIOR IN BATTING, ACCORDING TO SEASON AVERAGES

By GEORGE KIRKSEY (United Press Staff Correspondent)

Philadelphia, Sept. 30. — The only basis of comparison afforded between the world series rivals reveals that the Philadelphia Athletics hold an edge in pitching and fielding and the St. Louis Cardinals are superior in batting, according to the season's averages released today by the United Press.

The Athletics have five of the outstanding players, with Mickey Cochrane, Al Simmons and Jimmy Foxx ranking above their rivals and Lefty Grove and George Earnshaw the two foremost pitchers.

As a whole, the Cardinals seem to have a better balanced team, with every player batting .300 or more, and the pitching strength evenly divided among five men—Grimes, Hallahan, Johnson, Haines and Rhem.

Together Grove and Earnshaw have won 50 games, six more than Grimes, Hallahan and Johnson, who have hung up 44 between them.

In a short series, Grove, who has worked in 22 complete games, and Earnshaw, who has pitched 29 complete games, figure to carry the burden of the Philadelphia pitching.

Among the regulars Al Simmons carries the top batting of the two teams, with a mark of .381. Watkins, Cards' right fielder, with .379 and Gus Manasco, who will do the catching for St. Louis in lieu of the injured Jimmy Wilson, with .370, are next to Simmons.

Judge Fuchs, enthused over the gate receipts at Boston, has told Bill McKee, manager, to go out and buy anything he wants in the way of players.

There is still a chance that a special match for the fancy shot billiard championship of the world will be played before January 1. This was learned when it was announced that Senor Isidoro Ribas, Spanish billiard champion, had decided to remain in the United States until January 17, when his immigration permit expires.

Ribas is recognized as the fancy shot champion of Europe, while for years Charles C. Peterson of St. Louis has been recognized as the unofficial world's fancy shot titleholder.

Mainstays of the Mackmen

By HARDIN BURNLEY

It certainly seems as though Connie Mack, approaching the serene and yellow of his extraordinary baseball age, has produced another invincible team like that which forced him to sell most of his outfit during the Winter of 1914-15 "because it won so many games" that Philadelphia fans were tired of seeing the "A's" overwhelm all opposition!

That old outfit (shades of Bender, Blank, "Home Run" Baker, Eddie Collins and that "Million Dollar infield") surely has been rivaled in 1929 and '30 by another Mack machine extraordinary. It took Connie the Connaisseur fully fifteen years to assemble the present combination. There were many seasons when Philly and Boston had to outfumble each other for cellar honors. But all that effort was worth it if you know your baseball and have seen your 1929 or present Athletics.

Take that living dynamo of the "A's" for example—Mickey Cochrane, catcher extraordinary, who had (and has) as his tutor the wonderfully talented, Cy Perkins. Cochrane batted .400 and fielded perfectly in the last World Series. But he was great long before that. Even as a rookie out of a football-starred career at Boston College (Mickey's a Massachusetts mick of the famed Murphy—Donovan—Mahan-Casey type), Cochrane was brilliant. He had the husky build of a grid warrior, very active college schooling in baseball, and all that natural "savvy" which an ideal rookie should have. Soon, the five-armed, nimble, keen-minded, kidding "Mickey" was being hailed as "the perfect catcher" and that for more than three seasons now!

Then the "A's" also have another "perfect player" in Al Simmons, hitter and outfielder (.365 with the stick in 1929 who made but four errors in 142 games for .989 that same season!). And he's been playing at a like pace all this year. What a mainstay—what a pair of 'em—he and Cochrane make!

PAAVO IS BEST, EXPERTS CLAIM

Nurmi Picked as Greatest Runner of All Time.

Who is the greatest runner of all time, asked a young footracer recently of one of a group of veteran track fans and timers who were chatting about the ancient pastime in an up-town club. And with virtual unanimity the answer was—why Paavo Nurmi of course. No matter where the question of ultimate supremacy in human racing is raised, the reply inevitably is Nurmi. The immortal Finn seems to have gripped the imagination of sport lovers both on the Continent and in this country, and even though he has lost much of the terrific speed that was formerly exclusively his, men the world over still speak of him as the finest runner ever to pull on a track shoe.

At the present time, the quiet speed boy of Abo is concentrating his attention on long-distance running. True he has negotiated the long jaunts before, and with characteristic success, but now it is a different matter. Hunt has been playing a bangup shortstop for Houston, one of the Cardinal chain clubs, and hitting around .335.

Bettencourt, backstopping for Wichita Falls, is the curragh home run king of the league, with a total about the same size of Babe Ruth's and the distinction of collecting four round-trippers in one afternoon during a double-header.

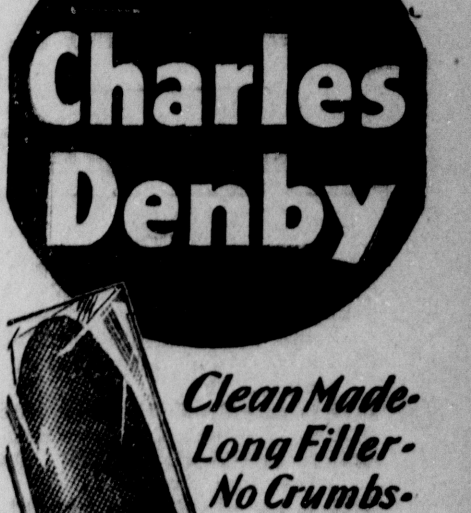

Harness racing has begun to make real strides around Sydney since the New South Wales Trotting club completed its new grand stand at Harold park and made various improvements, spending $100,000.

RETURN OF BETTER TIMES HERALDED

National Prosperity in Hands of Retail Merchants, Leader Declares

Chicago, Sept. 30.—"The quick return of national prosperity is in the hands of the retail merchants of the country," declared J. C. Penney, before the members of the National Chain Store Association here today, at their annual convention.

He also stated that the successful retail merchant of the future would be a leader in community affairs, serving as a community-minded citizen.

In his talk, Mr. Penney said: "In our organization, we have kept close track of the activities of our store managers in local affairs."

"It is characteristic of the American people that they are keenly sensitive to local activities. We are a race of joiners and we are community-minded. 'Rotary, Kiwanis, Lions, Community Chest, Chamber of Commerce, these are all far more than words in the minds of the American people. They stand for national traits which cannot be discounted."

"The duties of chain stores as citizens of the communities in which they operate are rather clearly defined. Past experience in our own business has definitely proved to me that no business can reach to its highest development in any locality unless it is community-minded."

"The average American family, and by this I mean the wage earning family, which is the backbone of retail success, is not sufficiently well organized from the viewpoint of budgeted expense, to measure a saving of from one to twenty per cent on its daily outlay against a friendly feeling toward the merchants with whom the wife or husband may be doing business."

"This family wants to enjoy a friendly and interested relationship with the storekeepers who, after all, are taking about 60 percent of the total family income every year."

"Because a man conducts his business in a manner to insure its financial success does not make him a business outcast in his community. Every community is fully aware of the fact that one of the most dangerous men in its midst is the man who is not equipped to run a business and who still insists upon trying. The losses sustained by retail organizations which fail are spread over the entire community."

"On the other hand, the man who insists that he must run his business purely as a mechanical, money-making machine, entirely without regard for the fact that he is accepted as a part of the community, is, and probably justifiably so, likely to be looked upon with suspicion by the community."

"It is not unusual for chain store organizations to be solicited by business groups and by Chambers of Commerce, to bring their stores to new communities. This condition is perhaps increasing rather than diminishing. It would seem to be an indication of the willingness of the community to accept the chain store into its citizenry."

"If the chain stores do as they are reputed to do, open up a wider trading area because of national recognition of their importance, then the local merchant can be shown how he can benefit directly from their operations in his community."

"The volume of money which comes into town on Saturday night, from the outlying areas, especially in our smaller towns where the requirements of citizenship seem to be the most exacting; if this is drawn into town and split up into payroll, tax money, rent and other local items, by the chain store units, because they do open enlarging trading areas, it is a definite contribution of good citizenship to the town."

"If chain stores, because they select carefully in choosing their locations, act as an upbuilding force in community real estate values, then they are definitely contributing to the economic development of that community."

Big Ben's Message Now Heard in Many Lands

London's most famous clock, Big Ben, which ticks off the hours in the tower above the house of commons, and whose bells have been heard in remote parts of the globe through the instrumentality of the microphone, gives "wise counsel" to at least one well-known Briton, Sir Duncan Gray, traveler and writer.

As Sir Duncan puts it, "Bells by some trickery of our cheating senses says to us what we are actually saying to ourselves."

During the World War Big Ben was silenced and was never illuminated, for it was feared that through sound and light it would give accurate direction to the German air raiders.

On still and clear nights it is often possible to hear the resounding thud of the hammers on its bells a distance of eight miles or more.

For most night owls the message its bells convey at 12 midnight is the fear that the last street car or omnibus has departed and that a costly journey in a taxicab will be one at least of the disadvantages of such belated peregrination homeward.—New York Sun.

Followed Indian Trails Over the Appalachians

A century after the first settlements were established it was evident that the future of the country depended upon overcoming the barrier of the Appalachian mountains and the great forests which clothed them. New colonists pushed inland along the rivers and later struck into the mighty forests from the head of navigation. They followed the Indian trails which they found and these trails came into general use. Thus Nemaquin's path which Washington followed on his mission to the French (1754) was the forerunner of Braddock's trail (1755) and the national road. The Kittanning path up the Juniata to the Allegheny furnished the route of Forbes' trail (1758). The Warrior's path from the Shenandoah valley through the Cumberland gap to the falls of the Ohio became Boone's wilderness road (1769) over which Kentucky was settled, and the Iroquois trail from Albany to Lake Erie developed into the Great Genesee road.

KEYNOTE OPENS CAMPAIGN FOR RAY P. CHASE

Anoka, Minn.—Declaring the people of America govern themselves through choosing, by their votes, between programs for state and national development submitted to them by two dominant political parties, each sponsoring certain definite principles, Ray P. Chase, Republican nominee for Governor, in his keynote address delivered here Tuesday, September 30, submitted to the voters of Minnesota a definite program to meet the problems confronting Minnesota today.

"The defective election laws of Minnesota," Mr. Chase said, "make no legal provision for a party platform and, until they are properly amended, the keynote speech of the gubernatorial nominee must serve."

Parties, Problems, Program
Fortified by his familiarity with state's business in all its phases gained through fourteen years' service in the state auditor's office, Mr. Chase plunged into a discussion of America's party system of government, an analysis of the state's problems, and presentation, on behalf of the Republican party, of a constructive program for state development.

In his audience were hosts of neighbors and boyhood friends, Republican leaders from all over the state and thousands of citizens, to many of whom his voice was carried outside the packed Armory by amplifiers.

Presented With Car
As Mr. Chase entered the Armory a group of his old friends and neighbors and officers of the Anoka County Ray P. Chase for Governor Club presented him with an automobile and special trailer, the use of which is their contribution to assist him in his speech-making tour of the state in the final weeks of his campaign.

"Without political parties popular government would fail," Mr. Chase said. "Since the purpose of a political party is to sponsor principles, when it sacrifices its principles to the ambitions of an individual, its usefulness ends."

He pointed out that in the 72 years of Minnesota's statehood the Democratic and the Republican have been the dominant parties. He declared the Farmer-Labor party is dead, its principles abandoned.

Farmer-Labor Party Dead
"Once it represented a splendid band of men and women," Mr. Chase said. "Today the Farmer-Labor party is only the husk of the party of 1920. Then it was aggressively progressive. Now in its platform there is little that is worthy and less that is progressive. Little that is honest and nothing that is sincere."

"Political history records no more audacious or insolent attempt to defile a political party than the present attempt by political pirates to scrap the life-giving principles of the Farmer-Labor party and make a job hunting bandwagon of its corpse."

Democrats Stick to Principles
The Democratic party, on the other hand, "presents a record sparkling with brilliant achievement," Mr. Chase said. "It has given us Jefferson and Jackson, Cleveland and Wilson; and Alfred E. Smith, one of the best loved public men of our generation. It has kept constant to its principles."

The Republican party, likewise, "is loyal to its ideals," the nominee stated. It has given to America Abraham Lincoln, Grant, Garfield, McKinley, Roosevelt, Coolidge, and the best equipped president who ever held that office—Herbert Hoover.

Carve State From Wilderness
"For 62 of our 72 years of statehood, the Republican party has prevailed in Minnesota. Within that time it has carved from the wilderness a commonwealth of churches, schools and homes. Through Governor Ramsey it laid the foundation for America's best state land policy, finest school system and largest educational trust funds. It has created an industrial department and protected men, women and children who labor; developed a department of agriculture and enacted more and better agricultural legislation than any other state in the sisterhood."

There never has been finer opportunity for service than that before Minnesota Democrats today, Mr. Chase said. "By no possible chance can the Democratic party win this election," he declared, "while the group now presuming to represent the Farmer-Labor party offers no leadership with either the knowledge to serve wisely or the wish to serve well."

Analyzes State Problems
Turning to an analysis of the problems confronting the state, Mr. Chase urged the repeal of superfluous laws and the amendment of statutes requiring remedial action, including the drainage laws and Reorganization Act. He Advocated a "pay-as-you-go system" of public expenditures which he recommended as state auditor in 1924, to help lower taxes.

Urged that the forces of law "be well organized, trained and armed, to combat modern crime successfully and to stamp it out."

Recommended enactment and enforcement of a drivers' license law.

Favored construction of farm-to-market roads as well as state highways.

Backed establishment of a conservation department with centralized authority.

Advocated a building program to care for defectives and delinquents.

Demanding creation of a state agency to control the state's wealth of waters.

Advocated a state park system. He praised the service performed by Earle Brown, chief of the state highway patrol, and challenged his opponents to "produce from their number a candidate to replace him."

He termed Charles M. Babcock, state highway commissioner, "our candidate to succeed himself" and inquired, "Who is the candidate of the job hunting coterie and what are his qualifications?"

Protect Independent Banks

He declared independent banks must be protected. "Chain banks can be controlled by legislation," Mr. Chase said, while Minnesota statutes already "prohibit branch banking. The law should be retained."

The Republican nominee asserted that the Blue Sky law should "be administered to encourage desirable new industries, the organization and financing of new and meritorious enterprises, and to protect innocent purchasers of securities."

Mr. Chase challenged the Farmer-Labor platform attack on the Republican party through that platform's reference to the "10,000 Lakes Fur Farm and Cochran foreign language newspaper swindle."

Why No Trials in Hennepin?

"Immediately after the failure of the Ten Thousand Lakes Fur Farm prosecution at St. Peter, the case was submitted to the county attorney of Hennepin county, for action," Mr. Chase said. "Nearly a year has elapsed and the defendants have not yet been brought to trial in Hennepin county. Why? C. A. Cochran was indicted by a Hennepin county grand jury August 7, 1924. Six years have elapsed and Cochran has not yet been brought to trial in Hennepin county. Why? Why was it necessary to bring action in another county to secure conviction?"

Discussing agriculture, Mr. Chase said the Republican party urged a state agricultural program covering more diversified farming, greater use of by-products, and reduced freight rates on farm products. He said the Republican tariff act of 1930 has raised the duties on the eight major agricultural products of Minnesota in amounts from 6% per cent to 300 per cent, and he declared that every Republican member of Minnesota's delegation in Congress had fought to obtain the tariff increases for farm protection.

Presents State Platform

Presenting his program for state development, which will serve as the platform for the Republican campaign of 1930, Mr. Chase said:

"On the great issues that confront Minnesota today, the following program is submitted:

"1. Superfluous laws should be repealed, election laws amended, statutory law be revised, brought down to date and kept there."
"2. Drainage laws should be amended to provide needed remedies and permit the restoration of waters."

"3. The Reorganization Act should be amended to define authority and eliminate irritation."

"4. Taxes must be held down by elimination or reduction of those expenditures that bring the least in returns."

"5. Laws should be enforced, crime defeated and destroyed."

"6. An automobile drivers' license law should be enacted and enforced."

"7. State aid should be paid in full and in advance; the trust funds preserved intact and inviolate."

"8. A building program providing adequate care of delinquents and defectives should be initiated now."

"9. There should be adopted a state aviation code in harmony with federal law."

"10. The Republican party demands early completion of the St. Lawrence Seaway and a nine-foot Mississippi channel, secured by locks and dams which will raise and maintain water levels in northern Minnesota."

"11. The trunk highway system should be completed and farm to market roads improved at the earliest possible time."

"12. Independent banks should be protected, laws against branch and chain banking retained."

"13. The Blue Sky Laws should be vigorously enforced."

"14. There should be created now a Conservation Department with centralized authority, headed by experts, to administer all natural resources."

"15. The Republican party demands for farmers improved marketing facilities, greater tariff protection, reduction of farm tax burdens."

"16. There must be initiated now a definite effort to secure more industrial plants for Minnesota and to remove the artificial handicaps that harm them."

"17. Forest products must be adequately protected, scientifically propagated, intelligently used."

"18. The state should create a competent state agency to act in all matters pertaining to use, control and preservation of the state's wealth of waters."

"19. Our fundamental need in conservation of wild life is a concrete, practical program, proved by experience to be sound."

"20. The state should create a state park system to protect its best in scenic beauty and historic interest."

"21. The tourist business should be developed."

"22. The Republican party pledges its best efforts to securing improved methods of beneficiating low grade ores."

"23. The Boxing Law should be repealed or extended."

"24. The state should initiate now a building program for the Capitol group."

"25. Indians should receive the same consideration and treatment accorded any other citizens or class."

"26. The soldiers' preference act should be rigidly enforced and the Spanish War Veterans given proper recognition."

"27. The State Teachers' Insurance and Retirement Fund should be made solvent."

"28. Women should be further recognized in politics and public office, their program for protection of women and children ratified, and service not sex should be made the yardstick for fixing wages on public work."

"29. Labor must be protected in a job, at a proper wage, under good conditions and guarded against old age, unemployment and poverty."

RETURN OF BETTER TIMES HERALDED

National Prosperity in Hands of Retail Merchants, Leader Declares

Chicago, Sept. 30.—"The quick return of national prosperity is in the hands of the retail merchants of the country," declared J. C. Penney, before the members of the National Chain Store Association here today, at their annual convention.

He also stated that the successful retail merchant of the future would be a leader in community affairs, serving as a community-minded citizen. In his talk, Mr. Penney said:

"In our organization, we have kept close track of the activities of our store managers in local affairs. "It is characteristic of the American people that they are keenly sensitive to local activities. We are a race of joiners and we are community-minded. "Rotary, Kiwanis, Lions, Community Chest, Chamber of Commerce, these are all far more than words in the minds of the American people. They stand for national traits which cannot be discounted. "The duties of chain stores as citizens of the communities in which they operate are rather clearly defined. Past experience in our own business has definitely proved to me that no business can reach to its highest development in any locality unless it is community-minded.

"The average American family, and by this I mean the wage earning family, which is the backbone of retail success, is not sufficiently well organized from the viewpoint of budgeted expense, to measure a saving of from one to twenty per cent on its daily outlay against a friendly feeling toward the merchants with whom the wife or husband may be doing business.

"This family wants to enjoy a friendly and interested relationship with the storekeepers who, after all, are taking about 60 percent of the total family income every year.

"Because a man conducts his business in a manner to insure its financial success does not make him a business outcast in his community. Every community is fully aware of the fact that one of the most dangerous men in its midst is the man who is not equipped to run a business and who still insists upon trying. The losses sustained by retail organizations which fail are spread over the entire community.

"On the other hand, the man who insists that he must run his business purely as a mechanical, money-making machine, entirely without regard for the fact that he is accepted as a part of the community, is, and probably justifiably so, likely to be looked upon with suspicion by the community.

"It is not unusual for chain store organizations to be solicited by business groups and by Chambers of Commerce, to bring their stores to new communities. This condition is perhaps increasing rather than diminishing. It would seem to be an indication of the willingness of the community to accept the chain store into its citizenry.

"If the chain stores do as they are reputed to do, open up a wider trading area because of national recognition of their importance, then the local merchant can be shown how he can benefit directly from their operations in his community.

"The volume of money which comes into town on Saturday night, from the outlying areas, especially in our smaller towns where the requirements of citizenship seem to be the most exacting; if this is drawn into town and split up into payroll, tax money, rent and other local items, by the chain store units, because they do open enlarging trading areas, it is a definite contribution of good citizenship to the town.

"If chain stores, because they select carefully in choosing their locations, act as an upbuilding force in community real estate values, then they are definitely contributing to the economic development of that community."

Big Ben's Message Now

Heard in Many Lands

London's most famous clock, Big Ben, which ticks off the hours in the tower above the house of commons, and whose bells have been heard in remote parts of the globe through the instrumentality of the microphone, gives "wise counsel" to at least one well-known Briton, Sir Duncan Grey, traveler and writer.

As Sir Duncan puts it, "Bells by some trickery of our cheating senses says to us what we are actually saying to ourselves."

During the World war Big Ben was silenced and was never illuminated, for it was feared that through sound and light it would give accurate direction to the German air raiders.

On still and clear nights it is often possible to hear the resounding thud of the hammers on its bells a distance of eight miles or more.

For most night owls the message its bells convey at 12 midnight is the fear that the last street car or omnibus has departed and that a costly journey in a taxicab will be one at least of the disadvantages of such belated peregrination homeward.—New York Sun.

"If the chain stores do as they are reputed to do, open up a wider trading area because of national recognition of their importance, then the local merchant can be shown how he can benefit directly from their operations in his community."

"The volume of money which comes into town on Saturday night, from the outlying areas, especially in our smaller towns where the requirements of citizenship seem to be the most exacting; if this is drawn into town and split up into payroll, tax money, rent and other local items, by the chain store units, because they do open enlarging trading areas, it is a definite contribution of good citizenship to the town."

KEYNOTE OPENS CAMPAIGN FOR RAY P. CHASE

Anoka, Minn.—Declaring the people of America govern themselves through choosing, by their votes, between programs for state and national development submitted to them by two dominant political parties, each sponsoring certain definite principles, Ray P. Chase, Republican nominee for Governor, in his keynote address delivered here Tuesday, September 30, submitted to the voters of Minnesota a definite program to meet the problems confronting Minnesota today.

"The defective election laws of Minnesota," Mr. Chase said, "make no legal provision for a party platform and, until they are properly amended, the keynote speech of the gubernatorial nominee must serve."

Parties, Problems, Program
Fortified by his familiarity with state's business in all its phases gained through fourteen years' service in the state auditor's office, Mr. Chase plunged into a discussion of America's party system of government, an analysis of the state's problems, and presentation, on behalf of the Republican party, of a constructive program for state development.

In his audience were hosts of neighbors and boyhood friends, Republican leaders from all over the state and thousands of citizens, to many of whom his voice was carried outside the packed Armory by amplifiers.

Presented With Car
As Mr. Chase entered the Armory a group of his old friends and neighbors and officers of the Anoka County Ray P. "Without political parties popular government would fail," Mr. Chase said. "Since the purpose of a political party is to sponsor principles, when it sacrifices its principles to the ambitions of an individual, its usefulness ends."

He pointed out that in the 72 years of Minnesota's statehood the Democratic and the Republican have been the dominant parties. He declared the Farmer-Labor party is dead, its principles abandoned.

Farmer-Labor Party Dead
"Once it represented a splendid band of men and women," Mr. Chase said. "Today the Farmer-Labor party is only the husk of the party of 1920. Then it was aggressively progressive. Now in its platform there is little that is worthy and less that is progressive. Little that is honest and nothing that is sincere."

"Political history records no more audacious or insolent attempt to defile a political party than the present attempt by political pirates to scrap the life-giving principles of the Farmer-Labor party and make a job hunting band-wagon of its corpse."

Democrats Stick to Principles
The Democratic party, on the other hand, "presents a record sparkling with brilliant achievement," Mr. Chase said. "It has given us Jefferson and Jackson, Cleveland and Wilson, and Alfred E. Smith, one of the best loved public men of our generation. It has kept constant to its principles."

"The Republican party, likewise, 'is loyal to its ideals,' the nominee stated. It has given to America Abraham Lincoln, Grant, Garfield, McKinley, Roosevelt, Coolidge, and the best equipped president who ever held that office—Herbert Hoover.

Carve State From Wilderness

Through Governor Ramsey it laid the foundation for America's best state land policy, finest school system and largest educational trust funds. It has created an industrial department and protection men, women and children who labor; developed a department of agriculture and enacted more and better agricultural legislation than any other state in the sisterhood."

There never has been finer opportunity for service than that before Minnesota Democrats today, Mr. Chase said. "By no possible chance can the Democratic party win this election," he declared, "while the group now presuming to represent the Farmer-Labor party offers no leadership with either the knowledge to serve wisely or the wish to serve well."

Analyzes State Problems
Turning to an analysis of the problems confronting the state, Mr. Chase urged the repeal of superfluous laws and the amendment of statutes requiring remedial action, including the drainage laws and Reorganization Act.

Advocated a "pay-as-you-go system" of public expenditures which he recommended as state auditor in 1924, to help lower taxes.

Urged that the forces of law "be well organized, trained and armed, to combat modern crime successfully and to stamp it out."

Recommended enactment and enforcement of a drivers' license law.

Favored construction of farm-to-market roads as well as state highways.

Backed establishment of a conservation department with centralized authority.

Advocated a building program to care for defectives and delinquents.

Demanding creation of a state agency to control the state's wealth of waters.

Protect Independent Banks

He declared independent banks must be protected. "Chain banks can be controlled by legislation," Mr. Chase said, while Minnesota statutes already "prohibit branch banking. The law should be retained."

The Republican nominee asserted that the Blue Sky law should "be administered to encourage desirable new industries, the organization and financing of new and meritorious enterprises, and to protect innocent purchasers of securities."

Mr. Chase challenged the Farmer-Labor platform attack on the Republican party through that platform's reference to the "10,000 Lakes Fur Farm and Cochran foreign language newspaper swindle."

Presents State Platform
Presenting his program for state development, which will serve as the platform for the Republican campaign of 1930, Mr. Chase said:

"On the great issues that confront Minnesota today, the following program is submitted:

1. Superfluous laws should be repealed, election laws amended, statutory law be revised brought down to date and kept there.
2. Drainage laws should be amended to provide needed remedies and permit the restoration of waters.

4. Taxes must be held down by elimination or reduction of those expenditures that bring the least in returns.
5. Laws should be enforced, crime defeated and destroyed.
6. An automobile drivers' license law should be enacted and enforced.
7. State aid should be paid in full and in advance; the trust funds preserved intact and inviolate.
8. A building program providing adequate care of delinquents and defectives should be initiated now.

19. Our fundamental need in conservation of wild life is a concrete, practical program, proved by experience to be sound.
20. The state should create a state park system to protect its best in scenic beauty and historic interest.
21. The tourist business should be developed.
22. The Republican party pledges its best efforts to securing improved methods of benefiting low grade ores.
23. The Boxing Law should be repealed or extended.
24. The state should initiate now a building program for the Capitol group.
25. Indians should receive the same consideration and treatment accorded any other citizens or class.
26. The soldiers' preference act should be rigidly enforced and the Spanish War Veterans given proper recognition.
27. The State Teachers' Insurance and Retirement Fund should be made solvent.
28. Women should be further recognized in politics and public office, their program for protection of women and children ratified, and service not sex should be made the yardstick for fixing wages on public work.
29. Labor must be protected in a job, at a proper wage, under good conditions and guarded against old age, unemployment and poverty.

STATE WINS FIRST MOVE IN GRAFT QUERY

A. B. Peterson Held to District Court on Bonds of $4,000

THREE TESTIFY FOR STATE Defendant Offers no Testimony at Preliminary Hearing Today

The state, represented by County Attorney Arthur J. Sullivan, brought Crow Wing county's first graft investigation into court today.

As the investigation continues into all phases of road and bridge work in the county during the past year, a former county foreman, A. B. Peterson, 61 years old, was held to district court on bonds of $4,000 following a preliminary hearing in municipal court this morning.

The specific charge brought against Peterson at the hearing today was that he presented a fraudulent claim to the county in the amount of $35.75. Such a claim was only one of a number which County Attorney Sullivan said he was prepared to prove in court.

The one complaint was held sufficient by Judge J. H. Warner to hold the defendant to district court.

The hearing opening with testimony by K. G. Leonard Wigh. Questioned by County Attorney Sullivan he said he was an employee of the Northern Pacific railway in the shops here but that for five days, June 30 to include July 5, not working July 4, he had been employed for the county on the culvert job on white line road No. 19, also known as the Pine Beach road.

Wigh said he received $4 in cash from Peterson the first day he was employed and on starting work signed an assignment of his wages to Peterson. He said that for the following four days he worked he received a check from Peterson from his personal funds in the amount of $16.

A time book was identified by C. W. Hoffman of the county highway engineer's office to show that Peterson had recorded Wigh as working up to July 15 while a warrant issued to Peterson was identified by County Auditor C. W. Mahlum showing that Peterson received $51.75 as wages assigned to him by Wigh.

CHAPTER XXXII.

NOLL thought for a while, his brows lowering. "That matter of Faith's trash!" he said harshly. "The clacking tongues should be dragged out!"

Dan'l nodded. "Aye; but that would not suit them. You know the men, they'll still seem Brander's able to hush them," he added. After a moment more: "You may be all but deserted in the cabin. He sticks much with the men of late."

Noll's face contracted. He touched Dan'l's arm.

"I've seen that he is much with Mauger," he agreed. "And Mauger—" His muscles twitched, and he went on, under his breath: "Mauger's whetting his knife for me, Dan'l! I'm watchful of that man."

"He has a sinking eye," said Dan'l. "But I make no doubt he's harmless enough, sir. 'T'd not fear him."

"I'm not a hand to fear any man, Dan'l!" Noll said stoutly. "Nevertheless, that twitching eye of his frets me." He shuddered and gripped Dan'l's arm tighter. "I should not have kicked the man, Dan'l. I've been a hard man—too hard; an evil man, in my day. I doubt the Lord has raised up Mauger to destroy me."

Dan'l laughed. "Pshaw, sir! Even the Lord would have small use for a thing like Mauger." He waited for a moment, thoughtfully. "Any case," he said, "if you were minded, you could drop him ashore at Port Russell and be rid of him."

Noll moved abruptly. "Eh?" he said. "I had not thought of that." He seemed to shrink from the thought. "But it may be he is meant to be about me. I'd not go against the Lord, Dan'l."

Dan'l looked sidewise at the captain; and there was something like contempt in his eyes.

"If it was me," he said slowly, "I'd set the man quietly ashore."

He turned away and left Noll to think of the matter.

Dan'l wondered, all that day, whether Noll would act; but toward nightfall they raised a spout, and killed as dark came upon them. That held them, for cutting in and trying out, three days where they lay; and they killed once more before they made the Bay Islands. They were touching at Port Russell for water and fresh vegetables; they put in here.

When the anchor went down, Noll sent for Brander to come down to him in the cabin. They had anchored at nightfall, and would not go ashore till morning. When Brander came, Noll looked at him furtively.

Brander saw the captain had been drinking; Noll's hands shook, and his fingers and his tongue were unsteady. The muscles of his face twitched; and there was a Bible open in his lap and a bottle beside him. Brander held his eyes steady, masked what he felt. Noll beckoned with a crooked finger.

"Come 'ere," he said huskily. Brander faced him. They were in the after cabin; and Noll sat still.

"We're staying here a day," he said.

Brander nodded. "Wood and stores, sir, I suppose."

"Oh, aye; and something else, Mr. Brander. I'm goin' leave here that man in your boat—Mauger."

Brander's lips tightened faintly; he held his voice.

"Mauger?" he echoed. "Why? What's wrong with him?"

"Don't want him around any more," said Noll slowly.

"Why not?" Brander insisted. Noll's lips twitched with the change was coming to pass in at this time. As the strength went out of Noll, it seemed to go into her. As he weakened, she grew strong.

He had never lacked a calm length of her own, the strength of a good woman. But she was quivering now the strength and solution of a man.

For a long time she clung to the figure of the Noll of the past, to hope that the captain would come again the man she had married. But when the Noll came back to her that day, exhausted by the struggle, the fire had gone of him, Faith perceived that he was a weak vessel, cracking and sinking before her eyes.

Noll was no longer a man. His hands and his heart had not the strength needed to command the ship, to bring the bark safely to port. Yet Faith refused to consider the chance of failure, would not have it said of him, he was gone, that he had sailed at last, and shamefully, had come to look upon the sea of this last voyage of Noll's as a charge; and when Noll's eyes weakened she prepared herself to take the burden on her own.

The Sally must have safely home, with filled casks for old Jonathan Felt, no matter what happened to Noll—or to herself. The prosperity of the Sally Sims was almost a religion to Faith.

She had begun to study navigation, more to pass the long and dreary days than from any other motive. Now she applied herself to it more ardently. And she began, at the same time, to study the men about her; to weigh them, to consider their fitness for the responsibilities that must fall upon them. The foremast hands, and particularly the mates, she weighed in the balance—and above all, Dan'l Tobey. For if Noll were to go, Dan'l by all the ancient laws of the sea, would become master of the ship; and their destinies would lie in his hands.

Short of the Solander Grounds, they struck good whaling and lingered for a time. Day by day the tuns and casks were filled; the Sally sank lower in the water with her increasing load. They were two-thirds full, and not yet eighteen months out—good whaling.

At dinner in the cabin one day, Dan'l Tobey said to Faith:

"You've brought us good luck, Faith, by coming along this cruise. We never did much better since I've been with Cap'n Wing."

Faith looked to Noll. Noll was eating slowly, paying them no attention. Silence was falling upon the captain in those days. He said nothing; so Faith said:

"Yes, we've done well, I'm glad!"

Old James Tichel, the second mate, looked slyly from face to face.

"And the 'gris, stowed below us here, will make it a fine, fat cruise for old Jonathan Felt, when we come home," he chuckled.

At the mention of the ambergris a little silence fell. Brander was at the table with the others. Dan'l and Willis Cox, the third mate, and young Roy Kilcup looked at Brander, as if expecting him to speak. He said nothing, and old Tichel, gnawing at his food, chuckled again, pleased with what he had said.

The ambergris, so rich a treasure in so small a bulk, had never been forgotten for a minute by any man in the cabin. Nor by Faith. But they had not spoken of it of late; there was nothing to be said, and there was danger in the saying. It was as well that it should be forgotten until they were home again. There were too many chances for trouble in the stuff.

They're Going to Wear Beaded Gowns Again

Brilliant is the outlook for evening gowns, especially when it comes to the beaded and sequin-covered dresses which Paris is exploiting with considerable enthusiasm. The gown to the left in the picture is literally covered with sequins. So is its matching wrap with the long flowing sleeves. Movie "fans" will recognize at a glance that it is pretty Laura La Plante who is wearing the daintily beaded gown.

Job Was Done

A grammar school student was set a question in an examination paper—"If twenty men reap a field in eight hours, how long will it take fifteen men to reap the same field?" The student thought long and carefully before writing the answer, and when he handed in his paper, this is what the examiner read: "The field having been reaped by the twenty men could not be reaped by the fifteen!"—Toronto Globe.

Dan! nodded.

"Aye, but that would not suit them. You know the men, for till, it seems Brander should be able to hush them," he added. After a moment more, "You may have all but deserted us in the cabin. He sticks much with the men of late."

Noll's face contracted. He touched Dan's arm.

"I've seen that he is much with Mauger," he agreed. "And Mauger—" His muscles twitched, and he went on, under his breath, "Mauger's whetting his knife for me, Dan! I'm watchful of that man!"

"He has a slinking eye," said Dan!.

"But I make no doubt he's harmless enough, sir. 'T'd not fear him."

"I'm not a hand to fear any man, Dan!" Noll said stoutly. "Nevertheless, that twitching eye of his frets me." He shuddered and gripped Dan's arm tighter. "I should not have kicked the man, Dan! I've been a hard man—too hard; an evil man, in my day. I doubt the Lord has raised up Mauger to destroy me."

Dan! laughed.

"Pshaw, sir! Even the Lord would have small use for a thing like Mauger." He waited for a moment, thoughtfully. "Any case," he said, "if you were minded, you could drop him ashore at Port Russell and be rid of him."

Noll moved abruptly.

"Oh?" he said. "I had not thought of that. He seemed to shrink from the thought. 'But it may be he is meant to be about me. I'd not go against the Lord, Dan!'"

Dan! looked aside at the captain; and there was something like contempt in his eyes.

"If it was me," he said slowly, "I'd set the man quietly ashore."

He turned away and left Noll to think of the matter.

Dan! wondered, all that day, whether Noll would act; but toward nightfall they raised a spout, and killed as dark came upon them. That held them, for cutting in and trying out, three days where they lay; and they killed once more before they made the Bay Islands. They were touching at Port Russell for water and fresh vegetables; they put in here.

When the anchor went down, Noll sent for Brander to come down to him in the cabin. They had anchored at nightfall, and would not go ashore till morning. When Brander came, Noll looked at him furtively.

Brander saw the captain had been drinking; Noll's hands shook, and his fingers and his tongue were unsteady. The muscles of his face twitched; and there was a Bible open in his lap and a bottle beside him. Brander held his eyes steady, masked what he felt. Noll beckoned with a crooked finger.

"Come here," he said huskily. Brander faced him. They were in the after cabin; and Noll sat still.

"We're staying here a day," he said.

Brander nodded.

"Wood and stores, sir, I suppose."

"Oh, aye; and something else, Mr. Brander. I'm goin' leave here that man in your boat—Mauger."

Brander's lips tightened faintly; he held his voice.

"Mauger?" he echoed. "Why? What's wrong with him?"

"Don't want him around any more," said Noll slowly.

"Why not?" Brander insisted. Noll's lips twitched with the change was coming to pass in him at this time. As the strength went out of Noll, it seemed to go into her. As he weakened, she grew strong.

He had never lacked a calm length of her own, the strength of a good woman. But she was tiring now the strength and resolution of a man.

For a long time she clung to the figure of the Noll of the past, to hope that the captain would come again the man she had tried. But when Noll came back to her that day, exhausted of the struggle, the fire had gone of him, Faith perceived that he was a weak vessel, cracking and breaking before her eyes.

Noll was no longer a man. His hands and his heart had not the needed to command the ship, to bring the bark safely to port. Yet Faith refused to consider the chance of failure. She would not have it said of him, he was gone, that he had the seas too long; that he had failed at last, and shamefully.

He had come to look upon the loss of this last voyage of Noll's as a sacred charge; and when Noll's eyes weakened she prepared bravely to take the burden on her own. The Sally must come safely home, with filled casks for old Jonathan Felt, no matter what happened to Noll—or to herself. The prosperity of the Sally Sims was almost a religion to Faith.

She had begun to study navigation, more to pass the long and dreary days than from any other motive. Now she applied herself to it more ardently. And she began, at the same time, to study the men about her; to weigh them, to consider their fitness for the responsibilities that must fall upon them. The foremost hands, and particularly the mates, she weighed in the balance—and above all, Dan! Tobey. For if Noll were to go, Dan! by all the ancient laws of the sea, would become master of the ship; and their destinies would lie in his hands.

Short of the Solander Grounds, they struck good whaling and lingered for a time. Day by day the tuns and casks were filled; the Sally sank lower in the water with her increasing load. They were two-thirds full, and not yet eighteen months out—good whaling.

At dinner in the cabin one day, Dan! Tobey said to Faith:

"You've brought us good luck, Faith, by coming along this cruise. We never did much better since I've been with Cap'n Wing."

Faith looked to Noll. Noll was eating slowly, paying them no attention. Silence was falling upon the captain in those days. He said nothing; so Faith said:

"Yes, we've done well. I'm glad."

Old James Tichel, the second mate, looked slyly from face to face.

"And the 'gris, stowed below us here, will make it a fine, fat cruise for old Jonathan Felt when we come home," he chuckled.

At the mention of the ambergris a little silence fell. Brander was at the table with the others, Dan! and Willis Cox, the third mate, and young Roy Kilcup looked at Brander, as if expecting him to speak. He said nothing, and old Tichel, gnawing at his food, chuckled again, pleased with what he had said.

The ambergris, so rich a treasure in so small a bulk, had never been forgotten for a minute by any man in the cabin. Nor by Faith. But they had not spoken of it of late; there was nothing to be said, and there was danger in the saying. It was as well that it should be forgotten until they were home again. There were too many chances for trouble in the stuff.

They're Going to Wear Beaded Gowns Again

Brilliant is the outlook for evening gowns, especially when it comes to the beaded and sequin-covered dresses which Paris is exploiting with considerable enthusiasm. The gown to the left in the picture is literally covered with sequins. So is its matching wrap with the long flowing sleeves. Movie "fans" will recognize at a glance that it is pretty Laura La Plante who is wearing the daintily beaded gown.

Job Was Done
A grammar school student was set a question in an examination paper—"If twenty men reap a field in eight hours, how long will it take fifteen men to reap the same field?" The student thought long and carefully before writing the answer, and when he handed in his paper, this is what the examiner read: "The field having been reaped by the twenty men could not be reaped by the fifteen!"—Toronto Globe.
